Real estate market starting to feel a little sluggish

By DAVID LELAND

WHEN DOUG and Valerie Steiny placed their Carmel Valley home on the market last May for $364,000, they believed the 4-year-old property would move quickly. After all, Doug is a profesional real estate broker and knows the ins and outs of the peninsula market.

Four months later, it appears the almost-1,500-square-foot, three-bedroom, two-bath home has finally been sold – having been reduced by $46,000.

"We (initially) priced it on what was appropriate 60 or 90 days before," says Steiny.

Indeed, after starting off the year on a bullish note, the Carmel area's sluggish housing market has fallen in line with the rest of the state, and nation for that matter.

'We did have a big first part of the year. (But) in April things started slacking off.'

– Rick Wilson
– First American Title

"We did have a big first part of the year," says Rick Wilson, county manager with First American Title. "(But) in April things started slacking off."

No longer can sellers dictate inflated prices and expect bidding wars to follow.

"It was a feeding frenzy," says Sherri Lee Grassi, owner of Hampton Court Properties.

Now, the tables have been turned, with buyers now able to pick and choose where they will live and how much they will spend.

"We tend to follow other areas," confirms Barbara Simmons, owner of Fouratt-Simmons Real Estate. "Other areas of California have been almost dead for some time now."

After seeing housing prices escalate as much as 30 percent annually during the past several years, Carmel area home prices have all but stagnated.

The median price of a home this June was $499,000, the identical cost of a home one year ago, according to the Carmel Board of Realtors.

Despite being forced to reduce his home considerably before it would sell, Steiny sees the current marketplace as a healthy turn of events.

"It's the way it should be," he says, adding that the previous hyper-inflated housing market was dangerous. "You give someone $500,000 for a two-bedroom shack, where does it end?"

Only 52 percent of homes listed in the Carmel area sold in June, compared to 60 percent one year earlier, according to the Carmel Board of Realtors.

"I think there are people who are getting discouraged," says Simmons, adding that sellers must begin to take a flexible approach when offering their homes. "Sellers have to be more realistic; people will have to lower prices."

Even Pebble Beach has seen a slowdown, with only 21 sales being registered with the county this June, compared to 45 in June of 1989, according to TRW reports.

IT IS anybody's guess where the market is

Reward signs removed; vandalized cypress topples

By FRANK GEORGE

FRIGHTENED RESIDENTS on Scenic Drive have had two signs advertising a reward for the capture of those responsible for vandalizing three Monterey cypresses removed last week.

On behalf of their clients, Monterey realtor Stephen Van Buskirk and Palo Alto lawyer Calvin Gunn requested the sign removal in letters to Carmel Mayor Jean Grace and members of the city council.

The residents and their tenants were being harassed and implicated for the vandalism by passers-by who noted the location of the dying trees and their houses.

"People were pointing their fingers at tenants in the glass house on Scenic...which is the second house southeast of 13th Avenue," said Van Buskirk. He said on the night one of the tenants arrived, a woman started accusing the renter of killing the trees, which are directly across the street from the home.

"She went into a rampage. She verbally assaulted him, I'd say," said Van Buskirk.

Van Buskirk decided to write the letter after speaking to Catherine Stimson of Tinker's Daughter Landscaping. Stimson told him a tourist had said someone will probably throw a brick through one of the glass house's windows. That same night the tenant heard loud noises against a window and found golf balls outside.

The tenant declined comment on the situation.

"I definitely think the signs should be removed if they're causing trouble for the neighbors," said Grace. "There's no reason those neighbors should be harassed."

Not everyone, however, is pleased with the removal of the signs.

Friends of the Carmel Forest member Howard Skidmore said the tree site was a very strategic location for the reward signs, which had been placed there by the group's members.

"Someone who might have valuable information for the police...might not be a visitor to the Carmel Post Office (where the reward is posted), or a reader of the newspapers," he said.

Skidmore also said it is possible that any objects thrown might have had nothing to do with the mutilated trees.

"A year or so ago, when the glass-fronted house was unoccupied, someone threw a stone that put a hole in a pane of glass," said Skidmore. He said thrown golf balls and other acts of vandalism in the area "may have had more to do with a full moon and the approaching end of school vacation than anything else."

Carmel forestry workers discovered the poisoning and girdling of three rare Monterey cypresses on Scenic Drive on July 17. The vandalism drew statewide media attention to the area.

The Friends of the Carmel Forest posted a $1,500 reward for information leading to the capture and conviction of the culprits. The reward has now grown to $4,072, with additional contributions from both residents and those living out of the area.

Meanwhile, one of the three trees toppled over late Tuesday evening, covering the walkway and portions of the street. Skidmore had first feared more vandalism, but city workers say that the stress of the girdling and other action finally caused the tree to fall. City workers removed the tree Wednesday.

Residents Water Committee says Cal-Am is overpumping; files suit

By FRANK GEORGE

THE RESIDENTS Water Committee has filed a complaint with the state Public Utilities Commission, alleging California-American Water Co.'s water supply cannot accomodate new meters, expansion of existing meters or the annexation of new territory.

The complaint will be heard at a public participation hearing at 2 p.m. on Wednesday Sept. 5 at Hilltop Park Center at 871 Jessie St. in Monterey. PUC Administrative Law Judge Mark S. Wetzell will preside.

The Sept. 5 meeting gives the public a chance to address their views to Cal-Am, the committee, water district and the PUC judge. If a speaker chooses to, he or she can file a petition to intervene at a formal evidentiary hearing set for Jan. 7, 1991.

"Continuing to issue new building permits (during water rationing), is like writing bad checks because you still have checks in your checkbook," said Residents Water Committee member Pat Bernardi. "If they don't take the environmental impact or drought vulnerability into consideration, Cal-Am has the ability to pump every single drop of water available."

Cal-Am vice president Larry Foy, however, has a different view of the situation.

"By Monterey Peninsula Water Management District calculations, we have enough water for all of this year and next year – even without rainfall," he said. "The water district is not over-allocating."

The complaint is rooted in the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District's failure to provide a certified water allocation Environmental Impact Report. The allocation EIR will indicate

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Letters to the editor are welcome. Views on all matters are acceptable, following the guidelines of good taste. While there is no limit on length, brevity is encouraged. Letters are subject to editing for style and length. Each letter must contain name, address and signature. A phone number is needed for verification only. Anonymous letters are not accepted.

Defeating the concept

Dear Editor:

If what I have read is true, the Monterey Peninsula Water Agency has taken a turn for the worse by becoming anti-environmental.

It has arranged for Congressman Panetta to sponsor special legislation for a land exchange of Ventana Wilderness Area. If the United States Senate approves, it would encourage more special legislation for special interests to acquire some of the most preferred government land now dedicated to wilderness in many places, and defeat the entire concept of wilderness.

I am also told that the Water Agency has hired a lobbyist to change the Clean Water Act and maybe some other federal and state laws which were designed to protect the environment.

It seems to me that the Water Agency has grown into a what's-in-it-for-me attitude rather than about what is best for the nation.

I feel we would be better off if the Water Agency simply gave attention to pollution prevention, reclaimed wastewater for irrigation, desalinated seawater for drinking and urban runoffs that could be treated for either irrigation or drinking and held in small reservoirs. That would be a lot quicker and less expensive in total than a new dam cost and allow us to have a modern water supply system within our economic means.

No news is good news?

Dear Editor:

Hot news topics must be pretty scarce these days. The Pine Cone's page one story entitled, "What's in a name?...." which appeared in the Aug. 16 issue, ranks right up there with "Numbers of tourists falling off their flip-flops on Ocean Ave. between San Carlos and Dolores Streets on a Sunday afternoon," in level of importance or newsworthiness.

The not-so-gripping story surprisingly shared page one space with the piece dealing with comparative costs of highway improvement projects in Monterey County. Maybe the story was just the right length to fit nicely into the leftover space; but if that was so, then wouldn't we rather be treated to a Bill Bates cartoon?

How about attending to the real issue? The fluff which has been produced in discussing the names of "groups," Blue Sheets, and Peach Sheets, all comes out of the honest concern and controversy surrounding the action of the three Carmel City Council members to squeeze 200 square feet of living space (that's a room!), from Carmel's maximum allowable house size, in the theory that this is what will really prevent "massive" and "ugly" homes from ever appearing again in our lovely Carmel-by-the-Sea.

With all due respect, here's a suggestion to any reporter who is looking for timely and significant material. Attend Carmel Planning Commission and City Council meetings, and listen carefully!

Preserving the land

Dear Editor:

For those of us who live in the Carmel Highlands there is a quality of life we enjoy that has been protected throughout the years by the untouched nature that surrounds us. When we built our homes, we did so so as not to disturb the trees that were here before us, and the wildlife that live around us.

When we leave our homes to drive to Carmel, that same quality of life is still very evident along Highway 1. We marvel and enjoy those miles of untouched acres of land along the way, such as the Point Lobos State Park that embraces the Pacific Ocean, the Ryan Ranch with its horses grazing on the land, and the historical monastery protected by a background of rolling hills and mountains.

But now there are those, who have an obsession for money and power, that would transform this sensitive nature beauty into a nightmare of commercial activity. To permit these uncaring developers to intrude and destroy this environment, not to mention the change in air quality and increased auto traffic this project would create, would be an act against God's creation.

I, for one, am urging the powers that be, to reject any and all plans submitted to them for the sake of preserving a part of the land we and those after us will enjoy living with.

Cut 'em short

Dear Editor:

The Carmel Pine Cone says it welcomes letters to the editor, adding that "brevity is encouraged." Fie! The Pine Cone regularly prints letters that go on...and on...and on...at tedious length. Take a look at four of the seven letters in the edition of Aug. 9, for example.

Anything worth saying – and worth printing – can be said in two moderate-sized paragraphs. Writers who go beyond that length defeat their own purpose. Who reads them? So enough of this ponderous verbosity. Mr. Editor, do your job: Edit!

In good hands

Dear Editor:

The future of Carmel is in good hands with 10 year olds such as Kelsey McAllister.

She wrote a touching and thoughtful poem about the damaged trees on Scenic and 13th.

Keep up the good work Kelsey!

Sold on staying

Dear Editor:

We came here a quarter of a century ago to enjoy life and we haven't been disappointed.

The scenery is delightful, the climate is quite satisfactory, the people are very friendly and fascinating, the shopkeepers are very cooperative and resourceful, and we have made some lovely friends to help us enjoy all this.

We have never been mugged, robbed, or burglarized. There is very little ethnic disturbance, mostly at home, my wife is a Democrat.

Before I get too carried away there are some drawbacks, I would like a little more water and also slower traffic on the Carmel Valley Speedway. While riding my bike there one time some clown hit me square-on from the rear, she probably thought I was going too slowly. All things considered though, we are pretty close to that place of places, you know, up there.

However, lately I have been having some second thoughts, after reading some letters to the editor in the Pine Cone. Apparently this is not the place I thought it was. Here are some of the complaints. The people are no longer friendly, some of them don't even live here. The shopkeepers are out to make money and some even sell to strangers. Some of the newcomers are building nice houses. It's impossible to park downtown. Hell, I thought Carmelites liked to walk!

However before listing our house for sale, incidently it's worth four times what we paid for it, so the neighborhood can't be too bad, I thought of some of the amenities we have that were not here "a long time ago." Some of these letter writers must be long of tooth to remember so far back.

How about the library with those gracious and lovely librarians. Only drawback to the library is they don't get Monday's Barrons 'til Tuesday.

The Carmel Foundation is unique in the world, first class in every way. It's like a well-run club with all kinds of activities, and of course the best food in town.

I like to go to our hospital, to see friends, sorry they are in the hospital, but going there is a pleasure. Some folks go there just for lunch, it's such a nice place to be!

Carmelites might not like buses but ours are first class, nothing out of way, no rowdiness, no graffiti, and for seniors, it's a steal.

I don't know what I'd do without the thrift shops. Those rich folks in Pebble Beach give these shops their "little used stuff" and it's great.

Incidently those newcomers who build high-priced homes here are paying a ton of property taxes. This means the old-timers are getting a tax break!

I guess I just sold myself on STAYING!

Valuable resource

Dear Editor:

I would like to question the intent behind our "Mayor's Report" of your Aug. 2 issue.

The first paragraph of Ms. Grace's report entitled "Beneficial relationship" states "the tourists who come to Carmel are attracted by our handsome village-in-the-forest and by-the-sea." She then adds "In addition, the city-owned Community and Cultural Center – Sunset Center – hosts world-class entertainment; which again attracts the type of visitors who spend extended time in our community." She ends the paragraph by writing "As a result, Carmel-by-the-Sea has become the kind of tourist destination which benefits our merchants, restaurants and inns."

If the intention behind that report was to demonstrate that the existence of the merchants, restaurants owners and innkeepers is justified by the benefits it gains from the tourist trade and by the obligation it has to provide funds to the "Carmel Community," it has succeeded.

The report also has succeeded to convince this writer that our mayor has a very narrow view and doesn't really appreciate how important an asset to Carmel we, the merchants and other business people, are. This reports scares me.

Ms. Grace could you try, for a moment, to leave aside the label 'business community" and think about some of the merchants you personally know, the innkeeper, restaurateur, hairdresser, etc. Now ask yourself, who are these individuals and how do they participate in our community?

Their fine and unique merchandise, their attentive services, their lovely gardens, their homey interior decor, their craft and art, their outstanding tastes, their warmth, their kind reception, their smile, their happiness, their harmonious relationship, their special care and attention, the love of their work, the sharing of their wonderful way of life, this is what most of these individuals are about.

They are people and members of the Carmel community. Mix this invaluable human resource to the beauty of our forest and the splendor of our ocean and one discovers the recipe that attracts such a high quality of new residents and visitors to Carmel.

Ms. Grace, Carmel's merchants are a valuable resource and as people they are very much a part of the Carmel community. They didn't come here to "benefit from the tourists," as you write, but they came here to "work and live." Thinking this way would help you understand their needs and accept their participation. They are your representatives, your ambassadors, the ones with whom visitors communicate and remember as being the people of Carmel, whether you want to or not.

Monterey Bay Sanctuary needs help from public

By DAVID LELAND

ENVIRONMENTAL GROUPS this week put the word out that now, more than ever, the public must stay involved in the Monterey Bay Sanctuary process.

About 2,200 square nautical miles are being recommended for the proposed sanctuary, which will promote resource protection, research, education and visitor use for the Monterey Bay and its underwater canyon.

If adopted by Congress, the Monterey Bay Sanctuary will become the largest of nine sanctuaries located in the United States, according to the draft environmental statement/management plan, proposed by the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA).

"This is a good beginning but it can be improved upon," said Rachel Saunders, a spokesperson for the Center for Marine Conservation, referring to the draft EIS. "A variety of harmful activities could still threaten the area's sensitive resources."

The draft EIS is available for public review at the Harrison Memorial Library in Carmel, Big Sur Library, Carmel Valley Library and various libraries throughout the county.

"The public needs to understand that this is not a 'done deal,'" Saunders said. "They should develop a sense of ownership over the sanctuary; they have a vital role to play in shaping the Monterey Bay Sanctuary proposal."

The Center for Marine Conservation, Save Our Shores and Association of Monterey Bay Area Governments (AMBAG) have scheduled a "How to Testify" workshop for 6:30 p.m. Wednesday, Aug. 29, in the Ferrante Room at the Monterey Conference Center.

Saunders said it is important for the public to maintain a firm grasp of critical issues concerning the sanctuary when testifying before NOOA this September.

"NOAA officials are definitely affected when they come into a hearing and see lots of people," she said.

Public hearings before NOAA regarding the draft EIS are scheduled for:

– 7 to 10 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 12, in the Monterey City Council Chambers.

– 7 to 10 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 13, at the Veterans Memorial Hall in Santa Cruz.

– 7 to 10 p.m. Friday, Sept. 14, at the Half Moon Bay Community Center.

Saunders said her organization and Save Our Shores have put together a brochure outlining NOAA's proposal for the sanctuary, plus recommendations on how that plan can be strengthed.

"We feel that NOAA's proposed (boundary) alternative falls a bit short in providing the Monterey Bay region with the protection it deserves," she said.

(For more information concerning brochure and other information call 375-4509 or 425-3245.)

SPECIFICALLY, ENVIRONMENTALISTS are seeking an expansion of the northern and southern boundaries.

Saunders said the boundary on the northern section, which stops at Pescadero Point (just north of Santa Cruz), leaves the area wide open for potential offshore drilling.

That location, off San Gregorio Beach, is deemed by NOAA as "most likely for platforms" and falls in the cracks between the Monterey Bay Sanctuary and the Gulf of the Farallones National Marine Sanctuary.

In the south, Saunders said the public should push for a boundary which will protect the area's sea otter refuge.

AMBAG's Board of Directors has issued a statement calling for the selection of a boundary alternative which would provide for a sanctuary of 2,900 square nautical miles in size, extending from Pescadero Point in north San Mateo County to San Simeon Creek near Cambria.

In addition to the larger sanctuary area, AMBAG recommends establishing a 30-mile wide buffer zone contiguous with sanctuary boundaries.

Saunders said oil tankers, except for those travelling to and from Moss Landing, should be banned from sanctuary waters.

AMBAG, however, recommends that tankers entering the sanctuary be required to have special designs, such as double hulls.

AMBAG, Save Our Shores and Center for Marine Conservation all recommend that "thrill craft," such as jet skis, be banned from the sanctuary.

AMBAG OFFICIALS this week endorsed a boundary plan that will encompass 2,900 square miles, protecting waters from Pescadero Point just north of Santa Cruz to Cambria in San Luis Obispo County.

Water board to take on golf course rationing ordinance

By FRANK GEORGE

THE FIRST reading of a mandatory rationing ordinance for area golf courses will take place at the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District's Board of Directors meeting Monday.

The meeting will be held at 7 p.m. Monday, Aug 27 at Monterey City Council Chambers.

'Board members are having great difficulty rationalizing the reasons for which the golf courses should get this special consideration.'

– James Cofer

District General Manager Jim Cofer said the major issue of concern will be about the wording of the ordinance. Golf course owners don't mind a mandatory 20 percent savings and are willing to shoot for 27 percent, but they are asking that their fines be assessed retroactively on an annual basis if the 20 percent is not achieved.

"Board members are having great difficulty rationalizing the reasons for which the golf courses should get this special consideration," Cofer said. He said other area water users are regularly monitored, and, "The hang-up (from the public), will come because nobody else gets the benefit of an annual requirement."

"Golf course water usage is so dependent on the weather," said Dale Boust, an engineering consultant working with the golf courses. "We need to be managed on a yearly basis rather than a three-month basis."

Boust said golf courses have to start irrigating when it gets hot, and watering the turf accounts for 98 percent of their consumption.

"Golf courses are businesses that make a living off the attractiveness of the greens and the fairways," he said. "People come to the Monterey Peninsula to play the courses because they are still maintained as they have been."

Boust said Ordinance No. 50 came about because the public believed courses were using more water than they should. The water board acknowledged that public perception, and decided to review their consumption.

"Ordinance No. 50 is an effort to define golf course water usage in proportion to what is saved by the community," Boust explained.

Cofer said a rationing committee met with golf course representatives for three hours on Aug. 10 after the ordinance was first read and furthered at the July 23 water board meeting.

"They made several suggestions about the draft ordinance," he said, adding the courses argued against paying fines for not meeting the 20-percent rationing requirement on a quarterly basis. Cofer said he agrees with the golf course's argument for annual monitoring.

"Achieving such savings in a three-month period might be impossible for them," he said. "But I believe they can achieve 27 percent annually."

When asked why fairways, which do not have to remain green for adequate play, should remain lush when residents' lawns are turning brown, Boust said, "Letting the fairways turn brown would affect the industry." But he said the courses would do so if rationing continues and cutback percentages increase.

'Golf course water usage is so dependent on the weather. We need to be managed on a yearly basis rather than a three-month basis.'

– Dale Boust

"We could get to the point where tees, greens, and landing areas would be the only portions of the course allowed to remain green," he said.

In other business, the board will give a second reading and adopt Ordinance 51, which will change the water emergency use fee on area water bills. The fee hike will triple the fee, which is a funding source for the rationing program.

The increase would be from 2 percent to 6 percent.

Pat Beebe is new CHS assistant principal

By DAVID LELAND

OFFERING MORE than 20 years of educational experience, Carmel High School's new assistant principal is poised and ready for action.

Patricia Beebe, who most recently served as associate principal at Willow Glen Educational Park in San Jose (grades six-12), said she expects her students to exert the same efforts that she will.

"My goal is to see all students succeed," said Bebee, who will administer discipline to students and work closely with the administration in devising curriculum. "I intend to work as many hours a day as it takes to get that job done."

Bebee is well aware that she is working under the shadow of popular former assistant principal Joe Feldeisen, who this summer left the high school after 17 years of service to work in the San Joaquin Valley.

"I have heard that Joe is a marvelous person, well-liked by the community and students," said Bebee, who holds a master's degree in education from California Polytechnic State University San Luis Obispo. "I have an incredible task in trying to fill his position."

Principal Marie Ishida, however, holds no doubts that Bebee will rise to the occasion.

"I'm excited to have the opportunity to work with her," said Ishida, who interviewed Bebee with other members of the Carmel Unified School District staff earlier this month. "She will bring some skills and talent that will strengthen the administrative staff."

Bebee said she will not shy away from keeping order in the school.

"I have had experience in discipline since I began teaching," said Bebee, who began her career at Lincoln High School in San Jose in 1968. "I see it (discipline) being as extensive as there is a demand for it."

Bebee has seen her fair share of tough situations during her educational career.

Take, for example, her role as principal of

Carmel Garden Club member honored for her work

LYNNE CRANDALL discovered positive changes needed to be made in her own backyard – actually, in the "backyard" at the Cooper-Molera Adobes in Monterey.

Crandall, a member of the Carmel-by-the-Sea Garden Club, received a Letter of Commendation from Secretary of the Interior Manuel Lujan Jr. for her work in renovating the adobes' two and a half acres of gardens, an idea Crandall conceived after seeing its barren landscape in 1986.

"The Carmel by-the-Sea Garden Club felt this was an enormous opportunity for community involvement of national importance since the adobe is visited by thousands each year," Crandall said.

One of the largest Monterey adobes, it was built in 1829 by Juan Bautista Roger Cooper, a dealer in hides and general goods. His granddaughter Frances Molera bequethed the house, located at the corner of Munras and Polk streets, to the National Trust for Historic Preservation.

Crandall used her botanical background and leadership ability to enlist the aid of the community, the state Department of Parks and Recreation and her own garden club.

"We wanted the garden to be horticulturally correct with the pre-1865 era when the adobe was built," she said, adding that early varieties of herbs, roses and petunias were among the vegetation planted during the project.

But before the green-thumbed group could break ground, a few important barriers had to be overcome. The biggest problem – who was going to pay for all this?

"I had to raise money to make it work," said Crandall, who persuaded the state parks department to made a considerable donation.

When this major dilemma was solved, new problems developed, like providing the garden with an adequate water supply and finding a caretaker for the grounds, she said. Those problems were also eventually taken care of.

Crandall said the whole process took more than five years, but believed her hard work in preserving part of the nation's horticultural history was worth it.

"I hope with this effort we will encourage the state to plant all adobes periodically correct," she said.

Carmel school district readies intensive drug awareness program

By DAVID LELAND

ARMED WITH more than $30,000 in state grant money, the Carmel Unified School District is set to embark on an intensive drug-alcohol awareness program this fall.

The curriculum entails substance-abuse education for students, CUSD administrators and faculty, and parents.

"This is something that has never been done before, but I think it's a great idea," said Carmel High School counselor Kay Anderson, who this year will serve at the high school three-quarter time and work as district prevention coordinator the remainder of the week. "It has incredible potential, and we're just starting out."

Anderson will oversee programs at all of the CUSD facilities.

Anderson will counsel students who have last names beginning with letters S through Z, from 7:30 a.m. to noon at the high school.

Dee Dresser, who worked at CHS part-time last year, and formerly served as vice principal at Carmel Middle School, will move into a full-time position.

Anderson said students will benefit by the progam because it steers clear of value judgments and simple panaceas such as "Just Say No."

"I think that accurate information is something that kids need, along with decision-making skills," she said, adding that the curriculum will address what students should do when pressured by their peers to take drugs. "The program also has refusal skills. It teaches kids to say 'no' without turning off their friends."

'This is something that has never been done before, but I think it's a great idea. It has incredible potential, and we're just starting out.'

— Kay Anderson

She added that, for some reason, public beliefs center on the misnomer that drug users possess some sort of mysterious power.

"Non-users have as much influence as users," she said.

Program curriculum for students includes: Quest for seventh-graders; Here's Looking at You 2000 for grades K through five; and a review of the perils of tobacco use for 10th-grade students.

CARMEL HIGH School counselor Kay Anderson will head up a a district-wide alcohol-drug awareness program this year.

In addition, peer counseling, which offers high school students an opportunity to work with each other in solving problems, will begin at Carmel Middle School this fall.

"This will be an elective where kids will get training," said Anderson, adding that the course will be taught by Barbara Morriss.

Under the new program the district will offer parents a course called "Preparing for the Drug-Free Years."

Those classes will take place at Carmel Middle School.

Carmel High School will begin requiring attendance at a meeting for all parents of students enrolled in driver's education. Parent liability and consequences for students driving under the influence will be emphasized by members of law enforcement.

CUSD staff will take part in several retreats this fall, where they will be instructed on substance-abuse education.

Seniors program needs participants

IN SEPTEMBER 1987 the Carmel-by-the-Sea Police Department began a program to benefit senior citizens of the community in two ways.

First, senior citizens who live alone and are often "shut-in" their residences with little or no contact with friends or relatives, can be provided with the security of knowing that someone does truly care about their welfare. Also, those concerned with their physical well-being will have someone to check on them daily.

Second, seniors interested in participating in some type of community program will be able to work with those in their own peer group by volunteering to place these daily telephone calls to the recipients of the program.

Currently, the department has a full staff of volunteers, however, anyone wishing to be placed on an alternate list to fill in when another caller is unable to make it or is away on vacation, is encouraged to call for information.

Anyone living alone, whether concerned about their health or not, and all those seniors wishing to make new friends or just have the opportunity to talk with someone new each day is encouraged to participate in this program.

Telephone calls are made daily by a volunteer beginning at 9:30 a.m. No participant is ever restricted to their home; they need only contact the police department in advance if they plan to be away during the time the calls are placed to avoid any confusion. If someone fails to answer their telephone, a patrol unit is sent by to conduct a welfare check at the residence.

In addition to these daily telephone "visitations," social events are also planned periodically as well as home visitations upon request.

Anyone interested in becoming a part of this program should contact Desk Officer Cathy Dampier at Carmel Police Department, 624-6403.

Concours contours

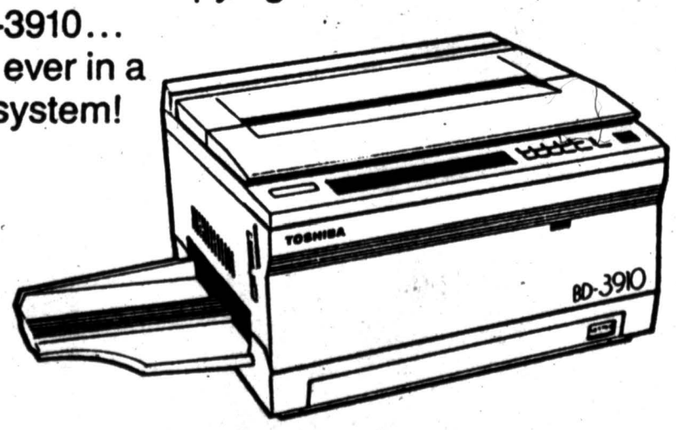

UNUSUAL SHAPES and forms was the order of the day at the recent Pebble Beach Concours d'Elegance held on the lawn surrounding the world-famous 18th green at The Lodge. For the second year American Dream Cars were featured along with Italian coachwork. A classic example of a Dream Car can be seen in this 1962 Ghia Selene II (top left), which was made by the Ford Motor Co. The rear seats face backwards and this model is the only one of its kind. A snake (above), strikes out with forked tongue from the fender of a 1907 Packard. Meanwhile co-chairman of the Concours d'Elegance, Jules Heumann, keeps track of the goings-on around the grounds of The Lodge by walkie-talkie while lecturing the media on the merits of American Dream Cars. BUSINESS BEAT

By David Leland

A word from Washington

IF IT'S any consolation to local merchants, Carmel's economic woes fall in line with those of the rest of the country, according to Rep. Leon Panetta, who spoke to CBA members last week during a special meeting.

"It hasn't been easy as of late," said Panetta surveying grim faces at La Playa hotel during the Thursday meeting. "We're still recovering from people who are concerned about coming to the area (because of the earthquake)."

But Panetta urged listeners to take a more macro view of the nation's problems, which will, in the long run, help closer to home.

"We are clearly a nation at risk right now," said Panetta, citing the Mideast crisis and the nation's inability to compete in the world marketplace because of its massive debt service. "We will have to learn to compete; that is the world of tomorrow, whether we like it or not."

One of the principal reasons for the $3.2 trillion annual deficit is "optimistic" forecasts by economists concerning interest rates and employment, he said.

For example, 3-month T-bills were forecast to sell at 5.3 percent by the administration. In reality, those bills have been selling for 8 percent interest.

For every errant percentage point, the government suffers $20 billion in deficit spending, Panetta said.

"We're seeing a flat economy because we are suffering revenue shortfalls," said Panetta, adding that the S&L problem has become a "black hole."

Panetta said the government will likely raise money from tax hikes and excise taxes. "You probably need a combination of both," he said. "(But) it's not easy to do in an election year. We've (Congress) got political grenades over our heads."

Panetta believes, however, that the nation can recover if its citizens tighten their belts.

"We've had a lack of sense of sacrifice in this country over the past 10 years," he said. "We will all have to sacrifice."

New to Carmel real estate... Sherri Lee Grassi has taken over the reins at Hampton Court Properties from previous owner Annis Lembo.

The name will remain the same, says Grassi, who recently relocated to Carmel from Pismo Beach, after 11 years selling property in that area.

Grassi plans to run an all-broker office, with three of the six desks now filled.

Grassi adds that the soft real estate market does not bother her. "I've always been a hard worker and made 20 calls before noon," says Grassi, who is fulfilling a "lifelong dream" in owning her own company.

Down for the count... Carmel dentist Dr. Donald Rocco was sentenced last week to a four-year suspended prison sentence by Superior Court Judge John Anton.

Rocco had plead no contest to one felony count of fraud and one felony county of grand theft for filing phony insurance claims out of his Salinas office.

Anton also ruled that Rocco must spend 200 days in county jail, make restitution of $300 a month and be under "intensive" supervision by his parole officer.

More than a dozen counts of fraud and grand theft stemming from Rocco's treatment of Bud of California employees were dropped by the district attorney's office.

County Bank accolades... The Findley Reports, one of the most prestigious California banking consulting firms, has awarded Monterey County Bank an A-Quality Rating for the second year in a row, based on the bank's 1989 performance.

Says Pam Findley-Flor, president of Findley Reports, "In awarding your bank our top-quality rating, we are expressing our opinion that as of Dec. 31, 1989, your bank was of the financial stature, and was operating on a basis that should rate the full confidence of all depositors, creditors, and others who may do business with your bank."

And then there was one... Carmel native John Olsen has assumed sole proprietorship of Classic Coachworks in Monterey from his brother, Chris.

Olsen, who has been in the auto repair business for 12 years, moved the store from Salinas to its current location at 368 East Franklin St.

Open wide... Maurice C. Corbett, D.D.S., has set up his orthodontic practice in Carmel Valley.

Corbett received his dental training at USF, practiced pediatric dentistry in San Jose for 15 years and is past president of the California Society of Dentistry for Children.

He will be using the latest computerized diagnostic techniques in his office, as well as innovative orthodontic techniques.

Just the name has changed... Rose Wood has renamed her successful Home Safe Sitting Service, which is now called Pets At Home Sitting Service.

"The new name accurately reflects the nature of my business," she says. "The old name no longer tells people what I do."

Pets At Home Sitting Service offers a broad range of pet sitting service throughout the county. Fees vary, depending upon where a pet's home is located as well as the number and size of the pets.

A long, long cord... New to the mouth of the valley is The Ultimate Connection, offering personal designs for portable phone owners.

It's not enough to merely have a phone in your car, says consultant Ernest "T" Townes, now you need "instant accessibility."

The store is located near the entrance to The Barnyard, at 26382 Carmel Rancho Lane.

Real estate slow

headed, with prognostications on the housing market rife for speculation.

"Maybe the prices have just gotten too high," says Wilson. "But buyers will buy if the price is more reasonable."

While some housing experts tracking the statewide market forecast the slump to last at least a few more years, local agents are taking a more optimistic attitude.

Simmons takes solace in the fact that those seeking a home in the Carmel market have more ready cash than the typical homebuyer.

Here, clients are mainly composed of: wealthy people who can live anywhere, people taking retirement, and those seeking second homes.

For that reason, she calls the current slump a "natural adjustment."

But Steiny claims that the slow housing market in the Bay Area has landed a direct hit on the local economy.

Steiny says that, with 60 percent of local housing non-owner occupied, it only makes sense that if people cannot sell homes in the Bay Area, they will not be able to purchase in Carmel.

"Last year I was soliciting sellers," says Steiny, adding that this year his transfer exchanges are down by almost a third. "This year I'm soliciting buyers."

Through it all, lending institutions are staying afloat in a brisk refinancing market.

Wilson adds that the S&L crisis has proved a blessing to financial institutions such as the Bank of America.

"Banks are becoming leading lending insitutions," he says.

If it weren't for an economy verging on recession, the Mideast crisis and drought, Wilson said buyers could cash in on attractive loan packages being offered.

"There's a good market because the (interest) rates are not that out of line," he says, adding that prudent shoppers can buy money for just under 10 percent. "We've seen worse and still been more active."

Steiny says that both buyers and sellers need to keep their transactions on a business level, not a personal one.

"The market is an emotional one; the drop is motivated by fear," he says. "The only thing stronger than fear is greed."

Suit filed against Cal-Am Co.

Last year, the residents committee presented a petition to the district board of directors, asking them to curtail the number of permits issued during times of rationing. The board responded by holding a series of public hearings in January, and adopted some restrictions on water hookups.

"I think we have a very good chance of winning, because enough evidence exists to prove we don't have an adequate long-term water supply that could meet the needs of present water users and avoid rationing," said Bernardi.

"Ultimately, the district will approve a new allocation formula based on the allocation EIR, which is currently under review," said water board member and 5th District Supervisor Karin Strasser Kauffman. "I'm as frustrated as anyone else that we haven't reached a decision yet. But we do want to follow proper procedure."

Bernardi said the district has reneged three times on their promise to present the certification.

"We've bent over backwards to give the district additional time to certify the allocation EIR," she said. "If you can't get satisfaction from one agency, you go up the line."

"It's an extremely complicated EIR," district General Manager Jim Cofer said in explaining the lagging certification process. "Those things just take time."

He said he has been involved with many EIRs throughout his career in water management, and he finds this one the most complicated.

Foy said the complaint should be issued against the district because it's the body that allows Cal-Am to issue water meters.

"The control over growth is in the hands of the municipality," Foy said. "We just operate under all these rules and regulations."

Bernardi said the complaint was filed against Cal-Am because the PUC has jurisdiction over them, and because the district failed to act on the committee's petition.

Foy claims the committee's hidden agenda revolves around growth issues.

"Are they afraid of (not having enough water) or are they afraid of growth?," he said. "Is the issue growth?"

Foy questioned the possibility of banning new permits, saying the restriction would violate property owners' rights.

"If you bought a lot and you wanted to obtain a (water) permit, does somebody else have the Constitutional right to deny you that privilege?"

Bernardi believes the water district has that right.

"Unless they have a water meter and a permit, they do not have a vested right to the water," she said.

Cofer said the district's main concern is the presence of layers of bureacuracy at the meetings.

"All this bureaucracy can make it so difficult, nobody can do anything."

Cofer said the best solution to the problem would be for the district to complete the EIR. But he also feels the residents committee might have an ulterior motive.

"I think the RWC is really trying to put pressure on the district to complete the EIR," he said.

"I'm not going to deny that I wouldn't like to see the document completed," Bernardi responded, "but we filed this complaint because we didn't get any response from the district in August of 1989, when the petition was filed."

Cofer said the allocation EIR could sharply limit the amount of permits issued if the PUC opts for a low acre footage availability (an acre foot is one acre of water 1-foot deep).

"If they (PUC) select 16,700 acre feet for instance, we may not have any water to allocate. If so, the board would have to make overriding considerations," said Cofer.

Some of those "overriding considerations" could include the board opting to approve only new projects that fall under the "special merit" or "hardship" categories, said Strasser Kauffman.

Bark beetle causing havoc with Carmel's pine trees

BY GARY KELLY
City Forester

THE CARMEL area is famous for its magnificient scenery, and most residents are here out of an experience of its natural beauty. One of the primary sources of aesthetic pleasure is the tall, elegant Monterey pine.

It has a highly successful enemy, however, in the form of the Red Turpentine Bark Beetle. This innocuous looking creature, approximately one-quarter to one-half-inch long, attacks many of our pines each year. Yet even with attempts at treatment, nearly 25 percent of the trees hit by this pest die and have to be removed.

What the Bark Beetle Does

How can this small insect kill such a huge plant? Inside the tough, armor-like bark of the pine tree lies the living, growing portion. This moist tender layer is called the cambium, and is where all growth and metabolic activity occurs. Nutrients, water and energy essential to the tree's growth and survival travel up and down this layer, as though on a kind of tubular freeway.

Anytime a tree is "girdled," that is, has a strip of the cambium killed around the entire circumference, it dies. The Bark Beetle can accomplish this girdling process quite effectively. It chews its way into the tree, releasing pheromones (sexual attractants), with which it draws a mate. When it reaches the soft juicy cambium, it begins to gnaw a vertical "gallery." Its potential mate joins it in this gallery, and together they prepare the "nuptial chamber," a wider portion of the gallery where their eggs are laid, fertilized and eventually hatched into larvae.

These larval forms are the real culprits. Munching their way as they go through several stages of development, they create horizontal rather than vertical galleries. Keeping in mind that hundreds of eggs may be laid in a single nuptial chamber, and that multiple beetle entries (or "hits"), on a single tree are common, it is easy to see how a tree can be girdled.

Of course, beetle generations will leave a tree once they have killed it, if not before, and move on to other trees. Obviously, the primary sources of these insects are untreated trees. For this reason, as well as the desire to save presently infested trees, the Carmel Forest and Beach Department urges property owners to learn how to spot the indications of infestation and how to then treat these trees.

Indications of Bark Beetle Presence

It is quite simple to spot a tree that has been infested, or hit, by the Bark Beetle. There will be a pinkish-colored sawdust or fine popcorn-like material in a small heap, usually somewhere around the base of the pine. This is called "frass," and is the digested wood from the beetle's trail.

If one looks up from the frass, a "pitch tube" entrance hole marker can often be discovered. This is a small clump (about three-quarters of an inch in diameter), of sticky material, ranging in color from light pink to brownish-red, with a small hole in the center. Beetle presence over a short time will also cause yellowing and death of individual branches.

Removal of the Bark Beetle

The procedure for removal is quite simple. Once you have located the pitch tube, chip away the surrounding bark with a chisel and mallet, taking care that no more is chipped away than is necessary. Keep chipping into the tree until you locate the moist whitish cambium layer, and then begin looking for the gallery, a shallow one-half-inch wide channel lined with a damp, reddish frass. The beetle will be in its gallery, so chip along it until you locate the reddish-brown insect. There will usually be two beetles present.

To be certain there are no more insects, chip away the bark until you have reached both ends of the gallery. If the beetles are not found, removed and killed, you may not have solved the problem. Seal with a pruning compound after chipping the wound into an oval shape for optimum healing. After doing this to all suspected hits, spray the tree with a Bark Beetle specific pesticide mixture for protection against further invasions. If you carry out this procedure, you will probably save the tree.

(Any questions regarding the procedure, or the problem itself, may be directed to City Forester Gary Kelly, at 624-3543. Remember, if your tree is left untreated, it will probably become a source of infestation to surrounding pines and may die.)

Meals on Wheels needs volunteers

DRIVERS AND other volunteers are needed to deliver 200 meals daily to shut-ins and the handicapped on the peninsula for Meals on Wheels.

According to Chuck Poland, a Carmel volunteer, 200 homes are served with three meals five days a week from Carmel Valley to Marina, but 22 volunteer drivers are needed daily to deliver those meals.

"We were seven drivers short the other day," said Poland, who has been pressed into service so often that he's driving almost daily now. "It means a lot to these people. You thank your lucky stars when you leave."

Poland said there are 22 routes, three of them in the Carmel area. One route usually takes from 10:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. (including driving to and from the pick-up point in Pacific Grove).

Each shut-in is delivered a breakfast, one cold meal (usually sandwich, salad and juice), and one hot meal. He added that volunteers are also needed to make sandwiches and salads at the Meals On Wheels facility at 700 Jewell Ave. in Pacific Grove.

Almost all of the help is from volunteers, Poland said, so often the agency ends up shorthanded. If you would like to volunteer to help out, contact Meals on Wheels at 375-4454.

Meals on Wheels is a non-profit organization.

He takes to waves, curls in more ways than one

By FRANK GEORGE

THE FIRST things you notice about Les the Barber are his neatly cropped silver hair and his immaculate white scrubs. In this guise, he looks more like former TV evangelist Dr. Gene Scott in hospital gear than a neighborhood barber.

But the similarities between the 61-year-old Les Fulgham and the fire-breathing boob-tube preacher end when he begins to speak. For one thing, you find out he actually has two unofficial titles in addition to Les the Barber: Les the Philosopher and Les the Adventurer.

He puts you at ease when he sits you down in his antique barber's chair and begins spinning yarns about Hollywood, human behavior and the high seas.

His favorite nautical anecdote is an emotional retelling of the hurricane he survived 25 miles off the coast of Acapulco, Mexico. He and his ex-wife survived 142-mile-per-hour winds and 12 hours of non-stop bailing.

"We got tipped over and the boat filled with water," he recalls. "My wife asked me to get the gun and shoot her in the head. It was that scary."

He says knowing that you're going to die is an extremely eye-opening experience.

"Once you've accepted death on an emotional and mental level, you never have a bad day again," Fulgham stutters and fidgets while recalling his hurricane experience. You can almost see the whitecaps as his voice cracks and you forget you're in a barber shop on Sixth Street in Carmel.

"When we reached the eye of the hurricane, it felt as though someone was on the boat. Only it wasn't outside, it was in me."

Fulgham says he has since talked to old sailors who also experienced the eye of a hurricane. They said there is an "old sailor" who comes aboard and shows you what to do.

"I seemed to know things I hadn't read. There was an inner-knowing. My wife said, 'Les, we're going to die.' But I told her not to worry, I knew just what to do."

With that "knowledge," Fulgham dove overboard and fixed the rudder and patched the boat well enough to allow them to sail out of danger.

Obviously, both he and his wife lived to tell about the harrowing experience, but this wasn't the only time Fulgham came close to breathing his last breath.

"I had an experience years ago when I was asphyxiated on my brother's boat," Fulgham says. He says he saw what appeared to be a tunnnel with a light at the end of it. That's when things started getting weird.

"I looked down at them (his father and his brother), and even tried to direct them (as they attempted to revive him). Remember, if someone dies, they're looking down at you."

His brother managed to revive him from this near-death experience, but instead of waiting around to recover completely, he rushed below deck to save his friend, who had also been asphyxiated by fumes in the boat's engine room.

That was Les the Adventurer, but what about Les the Barber?

CALL HIM adventurer, call him philosopher, sailor and matchmaker, and he's all that, but Carmel's Les Fulgham is better known in the area as Les the Barber. (Frank George photo.)

Fulgham tells stories about some of the famous heads he's had the pleasure to work on. Among these are entertainer Merv Griffin's silver mane, actor James Caan's curls and and the late comedian Dan Rowan's brunette locks.

He used to sail with Rowan in Marina Del Rey in Southern California. One day the comedian was late for a sailing date.

"I asked him why he was late. He said he had just finished making a pilot," Fulgham recounts.

"But it's really idiotic and childish," Rowan told him. "I don't think the public will go for it...It's called something like 'Laugh In.' "

The rest, as they say, is comedy history.

Fulgham trained under the late Jay Sebring, who fussed and trimmed some of Hollywood's pickiest coiffures. He was his mentor's "first chair" for many years during the '60s. That's where he met James Caan.

"When James got in the chair, I said, 'What do you do?,' He looked at me kind of funny and said he's an actor and he's going to become famous because he knows people in high places." Caan went on to fame in The Godfather and other films.

Prior to picking up his shears, Fulgham was involved in television and radio advertising. He started cutting his son's hair and soon some of the neighbor's kids started coming over. Then their parents started seeking his services. That's when he decided to enroll in a program taught by Sebring.

Unlike other beauticians or "hair technicians" as some are called these days, he prefers to be called a barber. He now charges $30 per haircut and counts "Dennis The Menace" creator Hank Ketcham as a current patron.

That's Les the Barber.

If you take a quick glance around his quaint shop you can see hanging seashells and scale model clipper ships, as well as column-mounted busts of ancient Greek philosophers.

Fulgham says old-time barbers were either barber-doctors or barber-philosophers. The familiar spiralling red and white poles outside the shops signified blood and bandages, hence customers knew what kind of shop they were entering.

"I'm a barber-philosopher," he says. "I matchmake and do all kinds of stuff."

He was the catalyst for five relationships, he claims, and four of the couples are still married. When asked about his skills as Cupid, he says he sees customers with the same likes and dislikes and takes it from there.

Born and raised in Portland, Ore., Fulgham's father introduced him to the sea on his small fishing yacht. As an adolescent, Fulgham was the youngest lifeguard at that time in the history of Portland. The ocean still holds a strong attraction for Fulgham, who currently lives on a yacht anchored in Monterey Harbor.

Part of his idiosyncratic nature includes his penchant for aphorisms. He not only quotes them to his customers, he has them published in newspaper ads for his business. And he has one for every occasion.

"Meditation: Get to know the spirit of yourself, seek silence and listen carefully," he says, words he lives by.

CARMEL RIVER WATER NEWS

By Henrietta Stern

Status of Canada Reservoir

TODAY'S COLUMN summarizes the status of the Canada Reservoir Project. This "off-channel" reservoir is an important water supply alternative being studied by the water management district in cooperation with Cal-Am Water Co.

The Canada Reservoir would be built in a dry canyon north of the Carmel River. Excess winter stormflow would be pumped up to the reservoir from a diversion facility adjacent to the river. This type of operation (pumped storage), differs from a mainstream dam like New Los Padres Reservoir, which would impound water by directly blocking Carmel River flow.

FEASIBLE TO CONSTRUCT

Much of the information for today's column was presented by Cal-Am at a water management district study session on Aug. 8. A key question addressed was, "Can a dam be built at the proposed site, and are there enough suitable materials available?"

The answer is "yes." According to Cal-Am, materials with which to build a dam are plentiful. Much of the material would come from two large landslides, which must be removed from the reservoir area for safety reasons.

Cal-Am's consultants noted that the onsite materials have unusual characteristics that may present construction difficulties, but construction of an earthen embankment dam is achievable with close field control. The soils will likely need to be premoistened and compacted prior to placement. The soils are not suitable for a concrete dam, which would be less massive than an earthen dam.

An earthen embankment dam that could store 25,000 acre feet would be 320 feet high, with a crest length of 1,320 feet. The volume of the structure would be over 10.8 million cubic yards, including nearly 1.9 million cubic yards that must be imported from outside the area. A separate spillway will also need to be constructed.

EARTHQUAKE DESIGN CONSIDERATIONS

Engineers must design dams to meet the Maximum Credible Earthquake (MCE) that could impact the dam. Though the Navy Fault runs through the reservoir inundation area, the controlling fault selected for design purposes is the larger Palo Colorado-San Gregorio Fault. This fault is located about 8 miles from the damsite, and has an MCE magnitude of 7.5 on the Richter scale. Cal-Am's consultants have worked closely with the state Division of Safety of Dams, which concurs with this conclusion.

The Navy Fault is an active fault where small earthquakes have been observed since the year 1990. Reservoir-induced seismicity (the creation of ground shaking due to the presence of the reservoir), is a possiblity with Canada Reservoir. However, Cal-Am's consultants indicated that any ground shaking induced by the reservoir would be minor.

SEEPAGE FROM THE RESERVOIR

The Canada damsite is underlain by Monterey Shale, a relatively brittle, permeable material. Minor seepage through and under the dam would be collected and pumped back into the reservoir. The Navy Fault could be quite leaky, and it likely will be sealed with grout or a blanket of compacted soils. Rough estimates of seepage from the general reservoir area range from 1,000 to 3,000 gallons per minute (roughly 4 to 13 AF/day). The rate of water loss could be two-to-four times the reservoir volume the first few years after construction until soils below the reservoir surface become saturated.

IMPORTED MATERIALS

As noted above, about 1.9 million cubic yards of material would be needed to construct the dam. According to Cal-Am's consultants, approximately 95,000 truck loads, or 190,000 truck trips would be necessary. Trucking along the Highway 68 corridor would occur for four years for six days a week, 10 hours per day, with about 15 truck trips per hour. To reduce the anticipated traffic impacts, hauling would occur during offpeak hours, such as nighttime.

ENVIRONMENTAL STUDIES

An interagency team of biologists jointly performed a habitat assessment of riparian vegetation that would be inundated by the Canada Reservoir. Significantly less acreage than for any other reservoir alternative (about 4 acres), would be affected. Studies on the federally endangered Smith's Blue butterfly show that though the host plant exists above the inundation area, no butterflies have been observed during the prime flight season. Cal-Am's consultants are presently assessing the potential impact of sediment deposition at the diversion site on the Carmel River.

MORE INFORMATION COMING

Cal-Am's consultants are presently developing a preliminary design and cost estimate for all facilities that will be required to build the Canada Reservoir Project. Additional analysis is necessary before a project size and operations schedule can be determined. District staff will provide CVSIM computer output to Cal-Am's consultants so they can determine these parameters.

Cal-Am has indicated that their studies will not be completed until the end of 1990. In the meantime, district staff will complete as much of the water supply project EIR/EIS as possible, then "fold in" information on Canada Reservoir as soon as it is available. The district and Cal-Am are working together in a cooperatiave manner to provide information about Canada Reservoir so it can be compared to other water supply alternatives in the EIR/EIS as soon as possible.

SPCA needs towels, linens

A plea to the general public is being made by the SPCA of Monterey County for clean towels, sheets, blankets and pillowcases for use in the animal shelter and wildlife center.

Blankets are used as comforters for the many puppies who are brought to the shelter because no one wants them. Prior to their being adopted, the shelter staff tries to make them as comfortable as possible and using blankets helps.

The greatest demand is for clean towels both in the shelter and in the wildlife center.

Donated items can be delivered to the SPCA animal shelter, 1002 Monterey-Salinas Highway 68 (across from Laguna Seca Recreation Area) any day of the week between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. If the donor has a significant quantity and cannot deliver them to the shelter, arrangements can be made to pick them up.

For more information, call 373-2631 or 422-4721.

Sign up for Beacon run

Entry forms are now available at Beacon House for this year's Monterey Bay 10K Run for the Beacon. This is the eighth year for this benefit which takes place Sunday, Sept. 16 at Lover's Point Park in Pacific Grove. Early entries (prior to Sept. 10) pay a $12 fee which includes a long sleeve T-shirt.

This course takes runners along the ocean from Lover's Point and back for the finish. The TAC certified race is open to all age groups as well as wheelchair entrants. Starting time on race day is 9 a.m.; race day registration is set 6:30 to 8:30 a.m. and the fee is $15.

The Monterey Bay 10K is the largest run of its type on the Monterey Peninsula and is staged each year as a fundraiser for Beacon House, a non-profit residential treatment program for adults with chemical dependency problems.

For information or to register, contact: Monterey Bay 10K; attention: Will Franke, Box 301, Pacific Grove, CA 93950, or call 372-2334.

Transit courtesy cards issued

Beginning Aug. 23, Monterey-Salinas Transit (MST) Courtesy Cards will be issued on the fourth Thursday of each month from noon until 2 p.m. at the Salinas Recreation Center. In addition, MST prepares cards on the first Monday of each month from noon until 2 p.m. at the New Monterey Senior Center.

MST issues Courtesy Cards free of charge to seniors at least 65 and to persons with disability. Persons carrying a MST Transit Courtesy Card can pay a reduced fare of 35 cents per ride or purchase and use a half price monthly bus bass. MST will also accept a MediCare Card for reduced fare payment.

MST will continue to issue Transit Courtesy Cards at their administrative office at One Ryan Ranch Road in Monterey from 9 a.m. until 3 p.m. Monday through Friday. Bus access to the MST office is by Line 8.

For details, call MST at 899-2555 or 424-7695.

Use toll-free line for park reservations

There is a toll-free telephone number for making reservations at California State Parks through the MISTIX reservation system – 1-800-444-7275.

Reservations from out-of-state callers will still be made through the toll number of 1-619-452-1950.

The toll-free number is not only for state park camping reservations, but also for Hearst Castle tours.

Free tours offered of observatory

Free tours of the Oliver Observing Station run by the Monterey Institute for Research in Astronomy at Chews Ridge will be offered on the following Sunday afternoons at 1:30 and 3:30 p.m.:

Sept. 9 and Oct. 14 (weather permitting).

Reservations must be made and space is limited. To make a reservation and obtain map and instructions, call the MIRA office at 375-3220.

Founded in 1972, MIRA is one of very few independent professional observatories in the United States. MIRA's 36-inch telescope, state-of-the-art instrumentation and unusual observatory building combine to permit the rapid acquisition of high quality data. MIRA astronomers are engaged in a wide variety of projects from the study of the birth, life and death of stars, to comets sweeping through the solar system.

Museum on Wheels seeks volunteers

Museum on Wheels is the multi-cultural outreach program of the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art. This mobile museum travels to elementary schools in four counties with a large collection of international folk art, representing more than 50 countries. Volunteers travel to school sites with staff two days a month and attend monthly training meetings. They assist with assembly presentations, exhibition tours and folk art workshops.

Individuals interested in art, children and travel who would like to participate, should call 373-2061 before Sept. 7 to schedule an interview. A training meeting will take place Tuesday, Sept. 18.

Artists join in all-day draw

The Pacific Grove Art Center, 568 Lighthouse Ave. in Pacific Grove, provides the setting for all-day art draws the first Saturday of each month.

Artists in all media and skill levels are invited to work at the center for all or part of the day. They will share the cost of professional art models and work independently at easels and tables provided by the center. There is a potluck lunch for those who wish to participate.

The fee is $16 for the day or $9 for half a day, with draw hours set 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. the first Saturday of each month.

For details, call 649-4657 or 375-2208.

Nature photography contest set

Categories cover various nature subjects and habitats along the Central Coast. Winning images will be used for educational programs and displayed presented by the California Department of Parks and Recreation and the National Forest Service.

The contest is open to all amateur photographers. There is an entry fee, and prizes will be awarded.

Mensa schedules qualifying test

Mensa, the international "high I.Q. society," will administer qualifying tests in Salinas on Saturday, Sept. 1. For reservations and information, call 375-8065.

Mensa is open to anyone whose score on standard I.Q. tests is in the top 2 percent of the U.S. population. Anyone whose score on the S.A.T. or certain other tests was above the 98th percentile may have already qualified for Mensa without further testing.

American Mensa celebrates its 30th anniversary this September.

Soviet space program revealed

The USSR recently opened its top secret space complex to a few American scientists. Rudy Panholzer, chairman of the Space Systems Academic Group at the Naval Postgraduate School in Monterey, was invited to join this revealing glimpse behind the Soviet space curtain.

The Monterey Institute for Research in Astronomy and the Monterey Peninsula College Community Services are hosting a lecture at 8 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 25 in Lecture Forum 103 at Monterey Peninsula College. Admission is free.

Only a year ago, the places inside the USSR where this presentation will take you were top secret. Glasnost, and the desire to market their most valuable asset – space, have enticed the Soviets to invite outsiders to visit their space installations and to show off their space program.

A group of U.S. scientists and engineers from the AIAA (American Institute of Aeronautics and Astronautics) and the Planetary Society were invited by the USSR Academy of Sciences to visit the Star City Complex (cosmonaut training center and the Mir Station mock-up), the flight control center, and the Institute of Biomedical Problems in Moscow.

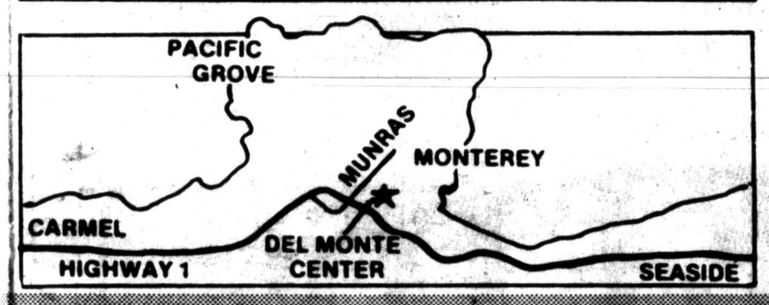

They were flown to Baikonour (1,550 miles southeast of Moscow) to see the USSR space shuttle Buran and the Energiya Heavy Launch Vehicle as well as their launch pads.

Slides and a video will serve as a vehicle to get you to these locatgions. For more information, call 375-3220.

TAKE MY WORD FOR IT

By D. Patrick Gallagher

Accidental reporting

SYNTAX, THE way in which words are put together to form phrases and sentences, can lead us into all sorts of difficulties. Edwin Newman recalls a U.S. commander in Korea saying, if the North Koreans attacked, "Our firepower will have a tremendous impact on their ground troops, breaking their will in addition to killing them." Errors of this sort are the source of many amusing solecisms.

My favorite compilation of errors in syntax is a collection of actual quotes to insurance companies from the reports of accident victims. They were collected by United Services Automobile Association (USAA).

– Coming home, I drove into the wrong house and collided with a tree I don't have.

– The other car collided with mine without giving warning of its intentions.

– I thought my window was down, but found it was up when I put my hand through it.

– I collided with a stationary truck coming the other way.

– The guy was all over the road; I had to swerve several times before I hit him.

– I pulled away from the side of the road, glanced at my mother-in-law, and headed over the embankment.

– In an attempt to kill a fly, I drove into a telephone pole.

– I had been driving for 40 years, when I fell asleep at the wheel and had the accident.

– My car was legally parked as it backed into the other vehicle.

– An invisible car came out of nowhere, struck my vehicle and vanished.

– I was sure the old fellow would never make it to the other side of the road when I struck him.

– The pedestrian had no idea in which direction to run, so I ran over him.

– The indirect cause of this accident was a little guy in a small car with a big mouth.

– I was thrown from my car as it left the road. I was later found in a ditch by some stray cows.

– The telephone pole was approaching. I was attempting to swerve out of its way, when it struck my front end.

– I was unable to stop in time and my car crashed into the other vehicle. The driver and passengers then left immediately for a vacation with injuries.

All of these are, of course, quotations and I hope I, and the USAA, have got them right. Quotations, even the best known, are often not what they appear to be. President Reagan was famous for supporting his positions with quotations which were more than a little suspect. He repeatedly quoted Oliver Wendell Holmes with "Keep government poor and remain free." Justice Holmes never said anything of the sort and, according to the best research, neither did anyone else...except Reagan.

Political pundits are fond of quoting Edmund Burke's line, "For evil to triumph, good men need only do nothing." The problem is, as New York Times columnist William Safire learned a few years ago, no one can find an authoritative source for the supposed quotation. Neither the British Library, nor the Library of Congress, can substantiate the great man ever having said anything of the sort. It is a wonderful line and, because it exists, someone obviously said it. Was it some parliamentary secretary, Safire wonders, or some would-be, but Burkean biographer? The collective wisdom of the Quotation Establishment is cringing in fear at this crack in the wall.

A line so well constructed deserves to be credited to its author, yet in the dusty bins of time that name goes unknown. Safire addressed the problem in a column one week, lamenting the lack of authorship. Within days the problem was solved for him, when upon opening a letter, newly arrived, he read:

Dear Mr. Safire:

The only thing necessary for the triumph of evil is for good men to do nothing. You may quote me on that.

Sincerely yours,
Edmund Burke

To the best of my knowledge, Justice Holmes has yet to communicate with former President Reagan.

(Editor's note: Last week Mr. Gallagher's column was printed incorrectly. In the last sentence Mr. Gallagher wrote: "I don't know which way I'll vote," but a typographical error caused it to be printed, "I don't know why I'll vote." We regret the error.)

The longest speech on record in the U.S. Senate was given by Sen. Huey Long in 1935. The speech lasted 15½ hours. It filled 100 pages in the Congressional Record, and cost the government $5,000 to print.

POLICE LOG

Thieves hit Simic Galleries again, but take nothing

PICKY ART thieves entered the Simic Gallery at San Carlos and Sixth streets Aug. 16, but couldn't find what they wanted.

Carmel Police Sgt. Bill Uretsky said the unidentified suspect(s) used a pair of wire cutters on a chainlink fence near the gallery's garden entrance on Dolores. Once past the fence, Uretsky said, the rear door of the gallery's south showroom was pried open with a crowbar.

The unwanted visitors tripped an alarm, looked around the gallery and then left, taking nothing, said the sergeant.

The gallery's alarm company notified the police, but when officers arrived the suspects were gone.

Simic's assistant manager, Bob Brown, told police he has a gut feeling they wanted the paintings from the artist Eduord Cortez.

Police have no suspects, but are continuing the investigation.

WHEN DINA Marine noticed her insect lantern was missing on Aug. 17, she got bugged and called the police.

Marine, 81, told police that the bug lantern was last seen Aug. 15, hanging from its normal spot at her Carmel residence, but by Aug. 17 it was nowhere to be found.

The missing lantern has not been recovered and continues to "bug" police and Marine.

SYNCHRONIZED SWIMMERS HEADED TO MOSCOW
FUND-RAISING EFFORT UNDERWAY

Cypress Swim Club members Desiree Castro and Heather Pease have recently been selected by the United States Synchronized Swimming Olympic International Committee to represent the U.S.A. in Solo and Duet competition at the International Junior Synchronized Swimming Championships called "REZERV" (Reserve) in Moscow, U.S.S.R., from Oct. 25th to Oct. 30th. In order to be eligible, participants may not have been born prior to 1973.

The Moscow City Association of Sports and Physical Culture and the Soviet Federation of Synchronized Swimming have invited participation from each country by two Soloists and one Duet. Castro and Pease will both compete in the Solo Competition and then pair as the U.S.A.'s entry in the Duet event.

The competition will be held at the Moscow Sports Complex, "Olimpiysky." This will mark the first international competition for the local pair, and another step toward their goal of competing for the U.S.A. in the 1996 Olympic Games, which may be held in Athens, Greece in observance of the centennial year of the modern Olympiad.

Castro and Pease just completed their U.S. competitive season last week in Largo, Fl., at the AAU National Junior Olympic Games, where Pease successfully defended her 13-14 age group Solo title as well as winning the Figures competition in every age group up through 17-18. Castro placed seventh in the 15-16 Figures, and both have qualified for the 1991 U.S. National Team Trials which will determine which athletes will represent the U.S.A. internationally in 1991. Julie Korper joined Castro and Pease to win the silver medals in Trio competition in the 15-16 age group.

The Cypress Swim Club urgently needs financial assistance in connection with the forthcoming trip to Moscow, and is seeking commercial sponsorships, individual contributions, and help from local service clubs since the cost of the trip to the U.S.S.R. will be approximately $7,500 for the two swimmers, their coaches Donn Squire and Del Neel, and the former president of United States Synchronized Swimming, Dawn Bean, who will accompany the foursome as the official judge for the U.S.A.

All contributions to the non-profit Cypress Swim Club (which is listed in the local telephone directory), are fully tax-deductible. Financial support from the community-at-large will be very genuinely appreciated by the participants in this prestigious international event.

Meals on Wheels needs volunteers

Drivers and other volunteers are needed to deliver 200 meals daily to shut-ins and the handicapped on the peninsula for Meals on Wheels.

According to Chuck Poland, a Carmel volunteer, 200 homes are served with three meals five days a week from Carmel Valley to Marina, but 22 volunteer drivers are needed daily to deliver those meals.

"We were seven drivers short the other day," said Poland, who has been pressed into service so often that he's driving almost daily now. "It means a lot to these people. You thank your lucky stars when you leave."

Poland said there are 22 routes, three of them in the Carmel area. One route usually takes from 10:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. (including driving to and from the pick-up point in Pacific Grove).

Each shut-in is delivered a breakfast, one cold meal (usually sandwich, salad and juice), and one hot meal. He added that volunteers are also needed to make sandwiches and salads at the Meals On Wheels facility at 700 Jewell Ave. in Pacific Grove.

Almost all of the help is from volunteers, Poland said, so often the agency ends up shorthanded. If you would like to volunteer to help out, contact Meals on Wheels at 375-4454.

Meals on Wheels is a non-profit organization.

THIS & THAT

By Florence Mason

"It hasn't rained for three weeks!"

DURING A delightful week with relatives in Washington (state of) I learned: the days are longer (the sun comes up earlier and stays up later); it can be warm and dry in that state for days at a time ("It hasn't rained for three weeks!"); Snoqualmie Falls are 268 feet high, 100 feet higher than Niagara; six cars waiting in line to cross a Bellingham intersection constitute "a traffic jam." And if you need a contractor for a home remodeling job, it may be a long wait. Business, and home building, are heading north – up.

At Lake Whatcom, an eight-minute drive from downtown Bellingham, you can travel in a motor boat, a sailboat, a canoe (especially delightful at 7 a.m.) or a rowboat; on jet skis, one ski or two. Or under your own power in 70-degree water. You can see river otters, beavers, ducks and ducklings, an occasional eagle, and a myriad of other birds.

Just to let you know that the Monterey Peninsula isn't the only paradise in the west.

IF YOU had heard that even Washingtonians weren't particularly enthusiastic about the recent Goodwill Games, perish the thought. We were there – in the Tacoma Dome – for the final night of women's gymnastics and we were part of a cheering, yelling, foot-stomping capacity crowd of more than 16,000. The loudest cheers were for our American gymnasts, of course, even though the girls (little girls, in truth) snared only two bronze among 12 medals awarded that night. But every excellent performance – and there were many – brought an excited response, whether the gymnast was American, Russian, Chinese or whatever nationality. It was a special treat to be there, and that was only one event in a two-week string of them.

Carmel's new community and cultural director is a survivor. Brian Donaghue was the clear choice of city officials and the community and cultural commission after a long and thorough search process. During that process, in which I participated as a member of the commission, I was impressed by his relaxed, friendly attitude, as well as by his relevant experience and other personal qualifications. He gives an impression of energy and good will. His former employers and present colleagues describe him as a workaholic and as "well-rounded." I concluded that anyone that relaxed and "together" couldn't be suffering too much from workaholism. But then he was quite early for the oral interview phase of the porcess. Hmmmmm.

While we can congratulate ourselves on the successful outcome of the selection process from the City of Carmel's point of view, let us not forget that whereas we chose Brian Donaghue from a field of more than 150 applicants, it is also true that Brian Donaghue chose us – because of what he saw of the area, its citizens, its cultural facilities, its city administrators, its cultural commission.

The next step is to give a warm welcome to our new director in October and then to give him the support and the opportunities to function at a high level that he must be expecting. We'll do it!

IT HARDLY ever fails. Whenever I go for my daily walk around Carmel Point or in the residential area, I may be stopped and asked for directions to some place or other. Inasmuch as I answer such questions at CHOMP's reception desk and at the aquarium as part of my volunteer duties, I don't mind; I enjoy it. But sometimes I wonder. Recently, I was stopped just a block east of Scenic Road by a boy walking his dog. "Do you know where the beach is?" he asked. I was tempted to say, "Yes, don't you?" But I refrained, and pointed. A few days later I must have set a record: on one hour-long walk I was stopped three times. Once by a young couple wanting me to recommend a motel "on the beach" and twice by people looking for the business district. The most delightful encounter I have had: a big car in which were riding a bride in her wedding finery and several of her attendants. They were looking for La Playa Hotel. A case of "get me to the gazebo on time?"

DEAR MARION O'Donnell:

I'm sorry that you are saying "adios" to the Harrison Memorial Library (letter to the editor of the Pine Cone Aug. 9). I can speak with feeling about both the "excellent card catalog" and the new computer.

As for the card catalog: for several years, as a volunteer, I was responsible for filing all those cards as they came in. I enjoyed it as a kind of game, a challenge, and as an opportunity to see first-hand what books were coming into this excellent library.

Nonetheless, I was happy to end that task when the computer (affectionately dubbed "Harry"), was installed. I understand that browsing among the cards had certain advantages, especially when you didn't have a specific book or author in mind. But now I am a happy user of "Harry" and when I go, occasionally, to the Monterey library, I find it a chore to have to lift out the drawers and look through all those cards.

I hasten to add that I am NOT "computer-literate." I rarely use a computer and approach them with awe on the occasions when I am offered that opportunity. But I found the Harrison Library's computer easy to learn, unfailingly polite, and almost always up-to-date. The card catalog is still there in the basement, Marion, and you can still browse among the cards if you choose to (although I must admit that neither I nor anyone else is adding cards to it these days). Age has nothing to do with it (I am qualified to speak on that subject), and it certainly isn't necessary to take a course in computers. Did you "ask the librarian for assistance?" I have never found an employee of the Harrison library who was not friendly, helpful, willing to assist. And that includes "Harry."

Sincerely,
Florence

SPLENDID SENIORS

Even the most splendid senior may at times become depressed. Inasmuch as polls are quite the thing these days, I decided to take one of my own, to answer the question: "What do we seniors do about it when we are depressed?" Some of the (printable) answers:

"I go to the ocean!"

"I rarely get depressed, but I might be irritated and then I walk to the beach." (About half the people I talked to mentioned the beach and the ocean.)

"I like to be with my children, or at least talk to one of them on the phone."

"I talk to a friend who always calls me when she's depressed; I get it off my chest."

"I eat."

"I go shopping and don't buy anything."

"I go shopping and buy something nice for myself."

"I walk – fast."

"I went to the SPCA and brought home a puppy."

ABALONE CLUB BEACH BARBECUE SET FOR AUG. 26

The Carmel Abalone Club will hold its third annual Volleyball Beach Barbecue party beginning at 4 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 26 at Carmel Beach at the foot of 13th Avenue and Scenic Drive. Bring friends, food and libations – the group promises to provide fire and fun. For more information about the party, call 624-5748.

FOSTER PARENT ORIENTATION SET

Monterey County needs caring people to share their homes with babies, sibling groups, minorities, and teenagers. Foster parent orientations will be held from 3 to 5 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 28 at the office of Community and Children's Services, 1352 Natividad Road, Salinas. For further information call Pat Owens at 899-8061 or Children's Services at 755-4660.

FRIENDS OF CARMEL FOREST SEEKING MEMBERS

Friends of the Carmel Forest, an official support group for the City of Carmel, is seeking new members. The group is committed to: support and work with the city's forester, the city's Forest and Beach Commission and other organizations; encourage greater public awareness of and concern for the trees, and inform citizens on the care of existing trees and the planting of additional native species; conduct fund-raising activities, receive gifts and create a tax-exempt fund to be distributed for the betterment of forest environment.

Single membership is $10; family membership $20; and charter membership $100.

Special donations toward the reward fund for information leading to the arrest and conviction of those who attacked the cypresses at Scenic and 13th are also being accepted.

For more information call or write Friends of Carmel Forest, Barbara Livingston, president, PO Box 344, Carmel, 93921.

TRANSKEI SEMINAR SET FOR AUG. 30

A seminar on "parallel needs" in the county and the African homeland of Transkei (the U.S. recognizes it as part of South Africa), will be held at 7 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 30 at the Hyatt Regency Monterey Conference Center, Cypress Rooms 1 and 2. Admission is free and open to the public.

Seminar title is "Parallel Needs in Monterey County and Transkei, South Africa in Medicine, Mediation, Agriculture, Education, Vocational and International Business Training, and Low-Cost Housing," and features Chief J.D. Moshoeshoe, minister-at-large Republic of Transkei Washington Bureau; Cherie Stock, member of Medical Center Foundation of Monterey County; and Dorene Matthews, executive director, Conflict Resolution and Mediation Center of Monterey County. Moderator will be Bill McCampbell, Washington D.C. attorney and McCampbell Mediation Foundation.

Transkei is located on the coast of southeastern Africa, near Durban, and has a population of about 3.5 million blacks.

For more information contact Bill McCampbell at 372-9202.

BENEFIT RECITAL TO RAISE RUNDS TO PURCHASE VINTAGE STEINWAY

On Sunday, Aug. 26, at 4 p.m., pianists Lyn and Renee Bronson will be performing a joint recital of solo compositions at the Monterey Church of Religious Science, 400 West Franklin St. in Monterey, to promote public awareness of the fund raising effort now under way to help the church purchase a vintage Steinway grand piano which has been stored in the church for the past few years.

The 7-foot Steinway grand piano, originally built in 1908, was lovingly restored by its former owner, the late Bud Iverson of Pacific Grove, who died earlier this year. The instrument is valued at $16,000, and approximately $2,000 has already been raised by Lyn & Renee Bronson. A series of benefit concerts has been scheduled during the coming season, the first of which is by the Bronsons. Subsequent concerts will include prominent local flutist Ray Fabrizio, classical guitarist Terence Farrell, and soprano Kazuko Mockett, among others.

On their program on Aug. 26, the Bronsons will be playing popular compositions by Mozart, Chopin and Medtner. Admission will be a tax-deductible donation of $10 for adults and $5 for children under 12. For further information, call the Monterey Church of Religious Science at 372-7326.

CONSERVATION MEDAL TO BE AWARDED BY DAR

The Commodore Sloat Chapter of the DAR (Daughters of the American Revolution) through the auspices of the organization's National Conservation Committee, is offering a National Conservation Medal. Individuals recommended for the award must meet certain qualifications and criteria as established by this committee. Those from this area should live or work in or near the Monterey Peninsula.

Mrs. Carl Hering, Commodore Sloat Conservation Committee chairwoman, announced that letters are being sent to all presidents or officials of local environmental organizations stating the requirements for the nomination of an individual they consider a possiblity for the award.

Nominations must be received by the DAR Committee prior to Sept. 15, 1990, the nominee selection will be announced before Dec. 15, 1990 and the medal will be presented on Tuesday, Jan. 15, 1991.

The National DAR and its local chapters are strong sponsors and supporters of environmental and conservation programs for members of their organization. Hering stated that they are anxious to recognize exceptional individuals from other groups who have similar conservation goals.

CHILD ABUSE PREVENTION PROGRAM ELIMINATED

California's Child Abuse Prevention Training Act, which provides funding for prevention education to some 6,500 children each year on the Monterey Peninsula and North Monterey County areas, has been eliminated by Governor Deukmejian from the 1990-91 fiscal year budget.

For the Monterey Rape Crisis Center, this decision means the loss of a $50,000 annual grant. This grant has supported child abuse prevention education services to 30,000 children, parents and teachers in 44 schools over the past five years, according to Clare Mounteer, executive director for the agency.

"This is not a program that has wasted the taxpayers money, she adds. "It has cost $7 to teach each child how to protect him or herself. It costs the taxpayers an average of $40,000 to investigate and process each case of child abuse."

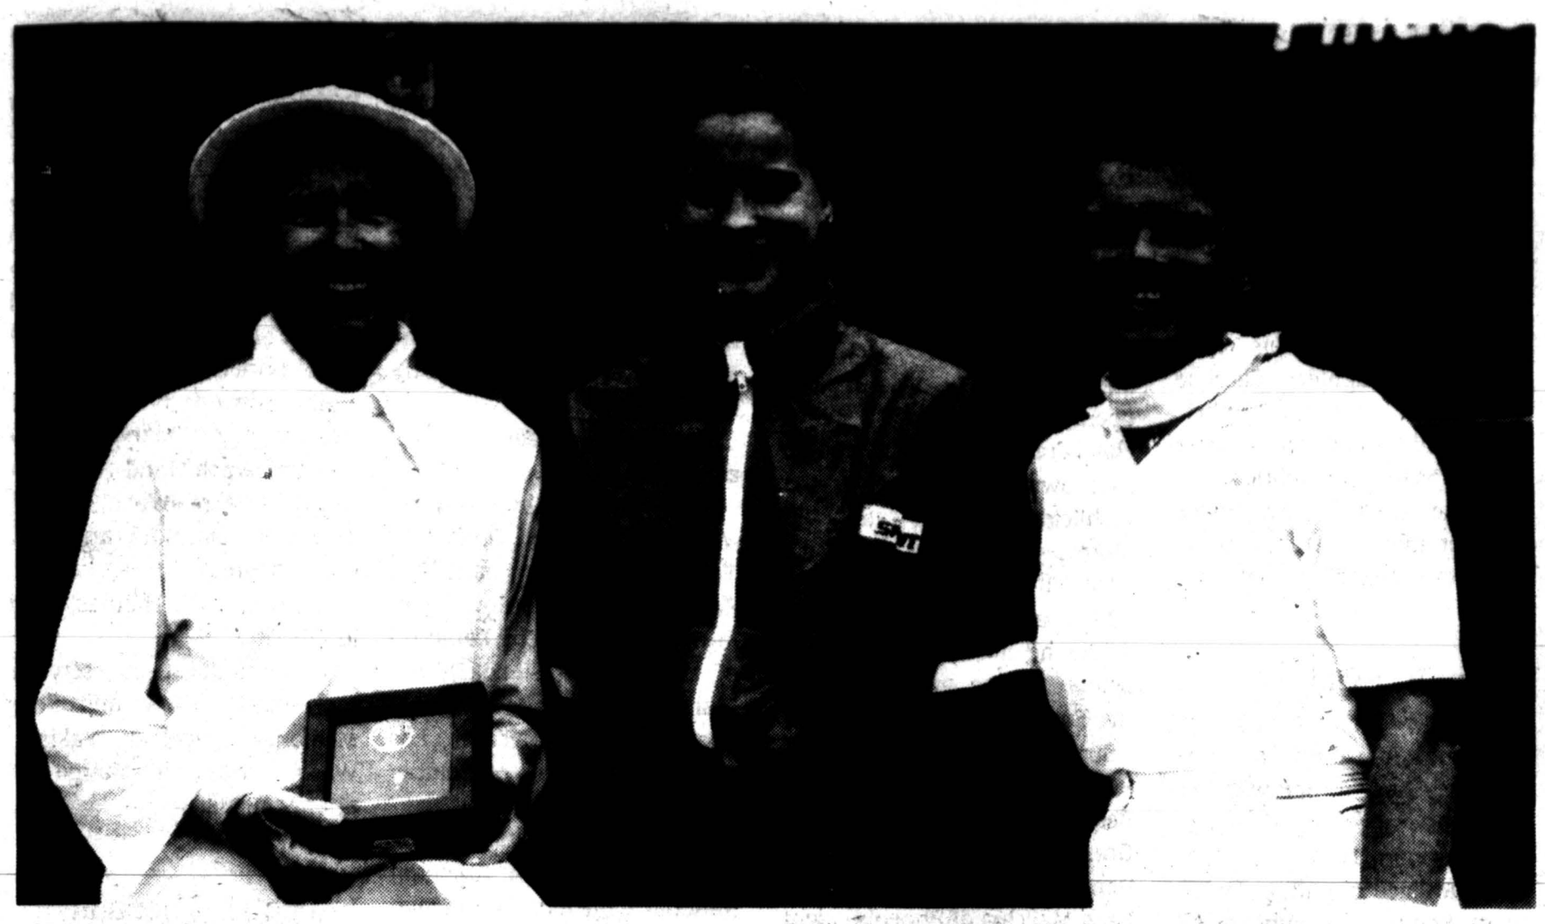

According to Mounteer, the need for child abuse prevention education is still as important as when CAPTA was passed into law, and she hopes to secure funding from private donors and foundations to continue this work at least on a part-time basis.

California's Child Abuse Prevention Training Act was passed into law in 1984 as a result of increasing concern by social service providers and lawmakers over the number of cases of child abuse which were being reported to Child Protective Services.

As late as 1989, over 2.4 million children were reported nationally as being physically, emotionally and sexually abused and neglected, according to the National Committee for the Prevention of Child Abuse. In Monterey County alone, 7,919 children were seen by Child Protective Services.

The goal of CAPTA was to establish a comprehensive statewide program focused on training children to recognize abusive and potentially dangerous situations, to get away, and to report. At the same time, the program provides training for educators and parents.

Foster care families needed

The Office of Community and Children's Services needs homes willing to share their families with children who need an alternative home – whether it be for six months or the whole year – while family reunification services are offered, or eventually a permanent home.

Almost every currently licensed foster home is filled, the office reports. For information about fostering or adopting a child, call 899-8061 or 755-4660.

OBITUARIES

Eugene H. Burkett

Eugene Henry Burkett, a resident of Carmel for 20 years, died Aug. 4 at Carmel Convalescent Hospital. He was 88.

Mr. Burkett, who was known as Gene, was born Mar. 28, 1902, in Nebraska. He attended the University of Omaha as a business administration major and later worked in the banking industry.

He was employed by Security Pacific National Bank for 10 years in Los Angeles before working for Federal Home Loan Bank as a bank examiner of saving and loans insured by the federal government.

Mr. Burkett was manager of the Martinez branch of Security Savings and Loan Association. He was director of the Martinez Chamber of Commerce, and active in the Rotary Club as secretary and treasurer and was treasurer of the Associated Rotary Clubs of Contra Costa County.

Mr. Burkett was transferred to the Security Savings and Loan Association's Richmond branch, where he has manager and assistant secretary.

He was a member of the Commonwealth Club of California and served as director of the Kiwanis Club of Richmond and the Trade Club of Richmond. He was a charter member of the Orinda Masonic Lodge, and a member of the Oakland Scottish Rite and the Shrine (Isalm Temple of San Francisco).

Survivors include his wife, Aline; a daughter, Caroline Burkett of El Cerrito; a brother, William of Carmel; and a sister Pauline Matzke of Nebraska.

Private services took place and entombment was in Moutain View Cemetery in Oakland.

Peggy B. Smith

Peggy B. Smith, a homemaker, died at her residence Aug. 6. She was 78.

A native of St. Paul, Minn., she was born Nov. 16, 1911, and had lived in Carmel for 26 years. She was a member of All Saints' Episcopal Church.

She is survived by her husbund, M. Foard Smith; two sons, Joe of Colville, Wash., and Peter of Mt. Vernon, Wash.; a sister, Jane Brotherton of New York City; four grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Memorial services took place Aug 10 at All Saints' Episcopal Church in Carmel. The Paul Mortuary was in charge of arrangements.

The family suggests that any memorial contributions be sent to All Saints' Episcopal Church.

Eileen A. Martin

Eileen Aldwell Martin, a homemaker from Carmel, died at Driftwood Convalescent Hospital Aug. 8. She was 80.

Born in San Mateo on May 24, 1910, she had been a resident of Carmel, since 1949. She graduated from Stanford University in 1931 with a bachelor's degree and earned her master's degree in classics, also from Stanford, in 1933.

She is survived by a son, Cmdr. John Martin of San Diego; two daughters, Mary Philips of Denver, Colo., and Jane Andersen of San Mateo; a brother, Alan Aldwell of Monterey; and six grandchildren.

A memorial service took place Aug. 11 at All Saints' Episcopal Church in Carmel. The Paul Mortuary was in charge of arrangements.

Robert D. Weaver

Robert D. Weaver, 77, a former resident of Carmel, died July 22 in Tracy.

Mr. Weaver was born in Salt Lake City on Oct. 26, 1912. He and his wife owned and operated the Green Lantern Hotel Cottages in Carmel and he later owned a business at the Richfield service station in Monterey.

He left the peninsula in the 1950s and moved to Reno, where he lived for some time before moving to Walker and the Topaz Lake area.

Surviving are two daughters, Peggy Brockhoff of Newport Beach and Dianne Lormans of Grass Valley; two sisters, Dorothy Munro of Tracy and Leah Macchia of Phoenix; eight grandchildren; and nine great-grandchildren.

Cremation took place in Tracy under the direction of the Hotchkiss Mortuary. Inurnment will be in Salt Lake City.

Donald C. Higgins

Retired Capt. Donald Carlyle Higgins, a veteran naval pilot and officer and a public service volunteer during his 13 years on the Monterey Peninnsula, died at his home Aug. 9. He was 76.

Mr. Higgins was born May 11, 1914, in Los Angeles and joined the U.S. Navy as an air cadet upon his graduation from UCLA in 1936. Commissioned in 1937, he served in a variety of flying and command assignments prior to and after his service in World War II and the Korean War. He retired from the naval service in 1962.

Among his numerous decorations was the Order of the British Empire. He was the first U.S. naval attache to Israel and was in naval intelligence prior to his retirement. He then worked for the Mitre Corp. of Boston and McLean, Va., for 18 years.

After moving to the Monterey Peninsula in 1978, he became heavily involved with volunteer work. During that period, he served on the Monterey County Grand Jury and was president of the Carmel Views Property Owners Association, and was on the boards of the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association and the Monterey chapter of the Navy League.

He was an ardent computer enthusiast and was active in the Monterey Bay Users Group, a computer hobbyist organization. He was a watch stander at the Maritime Museum and a member of the Carmel River Steelhead Association, the Carmel Presbyterian Church, the Beach Club and the Monterey Peninsula Country Club.

His first wife, Winnefred, died in 1973.

He is survived by his wife, Mary Kay; a son, Donald of Trooper, Pa.; a daughter, Patricia Batchelor of Iowa City, Iowa; a stepson, Scott Campbell of Monterey; a stepdaughter, Leslie Campbell of Los Angeles; two brothers, Clair of Los Angeles and Clark of Seattle; and four grandchildren.

Burial with full military honors took place Aug. 15 at Arlington National Cemetery in Virginia. A memorial service will be held Aug. 18 at 2 p.m.

The family suggests that any memorial contributions be sent to the Maritime Museum, York School or Carmel Presbyterian Church.

Katherine T. Vaughan

Katherine T. Vaughan, a former resident of Carmel, died Aug. 2 in El Toro. She was 86.

A native of Helena, Ark., she was born on Aug. 6, 1903. Mrs. Vaughan lived in Carmel from 1963 until 1971, when she moved to Del Mesa Carmel. She moved to El Toro in 1987.

Mrs. Vaughan was active in the Altar Guild at St. Dunstan's Church in Carmel Valley and at All Saints' Episcopal Church in Carmel and was a member of the Fair Ladies.

She is survived by a daughter Ann Logoreci of Monterey; a son, Theodore Straub of El Toro; and five grandchildren.

Her husbund, Col. George Vaughan, died in 1986.

Private services were held in El Toro with arrangements under the direction of the Neptune Society.

The family suggests that any memorial contributions be sent to the Altar Guild at St. Dunstan's Church, Carmel Valley.

Grace J. Edwards

Grace Joy Edwards, a former resident of Carmel, died in Yakima, Wash., on Aug. 8. She was 90.

Born on July 6, 1900, in Corning, Iowa, she was a resident of Carmel from 1960 to 1987. She was a longtime resident of the San Francisco Bay area prior to moving to Carmel.

Mrs. Edwards graduated from the University of California at Berkeley. She helped establish the John Muir Hospital and the Mary Doyle Thereapy Center, both in Walnut Creek, and she was a member of the PEO Chapter GX in Martinez. During her years in Carmel, she served on the board of the Carmel Music Society.

Mrs. Edwards is survived by two daughters, Mary Porter of Yakima, Wash., and Anne Edwards of Selay, Wash.; a son, Tom of Diablo; and six grandchildren.

Her husbund, Thomas, died in 1981.

At her request, no services took place. Shaw and Sons Memorial Chapel in Yakima, Wash., was in charge of arrangements.

Joseph H. Theriault

Joseph H. Theriault of Carmel, died Aug. 9 at the Carmel Convalescent Hospital. He was 67.

Born in Greene, Maine, on July 19, 1923, he was a resident of Carmel for 17 years. He was formerly employed by the Zack Corp. in electronics sales and retired in 1988. Mr. Theriault was a Navy veteran of World War II and a Coast Guard veteran of the Korean War.

He was a member of the Monterey Moose Lodge No. 876, the Monterey Elks Lodge No. 1285 and Sons in Retirement and he served on the board of the Monterey Bay Hot Jazz Society.

He is survived by his wife, Patricia; a son, Joseph Jr. of Livermore; two stepsons, Dean Hartley of Santa Rosa and Randy Hartley of Stockton; a stepdaughter, Sue Michelson of Springfield, Ore.; a sister, Constance Layton, of McCloud; and seven grandchildren.

A memorial service took place Aug. 14 at El Estero Chapel in the Mission Mortuary. Cremation took place under the direction of Mission Mortuary. A scattering of ashes was conducted by the U.S. Coast Guard.

The family suggests that any memorial contributions be sent to the American Cancer Society.

Knowledge of CPR could save lives

More than 70 percent of all CPR (cardiopulmonary resuscitation) rescues occur in the home on an individual known by the rescuer.

Statistics show that more than 650,000 people in the United States died from heart attacks in 1986 and that heart disease is the leading cause of death in Monterey County.

On the other hand CPR saves more than 250 lives a day; the more people that know CPR, the more lives that can be saved.

With that in mind the Carmel Chapter of the American Red Cross offers CPR classes monthly all year.

Classes are held at the Carmel Red Cross house at Eighth and Dolores. Classes include demonstrations and teaching of the Heimlich maneuver.

FATHER FARRELL'S WISDOM

'Lay down your mop and mope'

From Aug. 26, 1982
Carmel Pine Cone

Recently a friend of mine, a very senior citizen one year older than myself, was cited on the Los Angeles Freeway for going 50 miles per hour. Huge trucks, buses, pickups, even a Model-T Ford going to an antique car show zipped past him at 70 miles per hour.

The Highway Patrol officer asked him if he knew why he was giving him a ticket.

"Sure I do, I'm the only man in California you can catch." The officer said, "I'm charging you with mopery (i.e. to mope)." He made it sound like the most serious crime in the vehicle code. Perhaps the world would be better off if more of us committed "mopery" (except on the freeway).

Oh Lord help us to realize the importance of slowing down, of relaxing, even of goofing off. Help us to take time to reflect, to refuel, to recharge. Our Blessed Lord often went into the wilderness alone and He recommended this practice to His disciples. May we see that it is not necessary to rush 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

May it dawn on us that the world, especially our world, can run very well without us. It may be a blow to our pride, our self-esteem and our exalted opinion of our own importance but it should improve our humility, that rare virtue of seeing ourselves as we really are. As my great Aunt Lizzie used to say: "Lay down your mop and mope."

The Golden Years

Planning for retirement should take inflation into account along with estimates of future expenses, advises a financial planners association. The average person needs 70 to 80 percent of pre-retirement income for comfortable retirement living, the planners say. But, they caution, Social Security benefits provide only 44 percent, on average, of what's needed. Among ways of building up financial resources for retirement, the planners suggest taking advantage of employer sponsored benefit programs such as the 401(k) and 403(b) plans. Under such plans, employees' contributions and the interest they earn are tax-deferred until they are paid out to the individual.

A study released by the United States Census Bureau shows that Social Security saves more people from poverty than all other Federal programs combined. The bureau found that, if not for their monthly checks, 47.5 percent of people on Social Security in 1988 would have fallen into the poverty category — meaning incomes of $5,225 or less for a single person and $6,630 for a couple.

New gallery represents blending of art, business

By PAULINE LYNCH

EMY LEDBETTER, a Carmel painter for more than 25 years, believes the worlds of art and business can mix.

ARTS & LEISURE

On Aug. 1, Ledbetter blended the two very distinct realms by opening her own gallery – a big step for an artist who claims to have once felt intimidated by the business end of the industry.

"I just wasn't ready to open a gallery and get hung-up in the rat race before," Ledbetter says, adding that the ease of commercializing her images made her the most leery of going into business.

"I never really wanted to paint on demand," she says. "When one painting sells, artists tend to do it all the time. I didn't want to fall into that trap."

Ledbetter believes she paints her visions with independance, wanting each piece to be an original. The gallery, she adds, gives her the opportunity to bring that independance into the showing and selling areas of her art.

"I'm able to show all my different styles," she says. "I can't be categorized as a painter that does only Oriental or Indian themes."

Much like a proud parent, the artist likes to meet the people who buy her brainchildren.

Ledbetter says the gallery's first sale was to a young couple who were first-time art buyers.

"Buying art is a very personal thing," she adds. "I feel good when I know my work is going to people who really care."

Each wall of the Ledbetter Gallery is a tribute to the owner's personal style. She has created her own artistic technique by multilayering wax and acrylic paint. The process, she says, took 20 years to develop, but can change with her personal moods.

Her palette was very dark when she lived in the woods near Menlo Park, the artist explains. Her move to Carmel shifted her spectrum to a much softer, sandier looking array of colors.

"I just don't like to limit myself to any one thing," she says, adding that this medium is also conducive to a variety of different subjects.

Many of the faces of Ledbetter's works are reminiscent of Indian and Oriental themes, though she admits, she doesn't know why she is influenced by these cultures.

"I've never been to the Orient," she says. "I just open myself up and Oriental emerges."

Ledbetter believes subject matter comes from a mystical place within each artist.

"My primary objective in painting," she says, "is to find and share areas within, that have not been explored before."

"I paint to entice a person to look again and again," Ledbetter adds. "I put the figures in an elusive background so they can wonder if that really is the background or the foreground."

Ledbetter would also like to entice guests to view the work of other artists at her gallery. Because of permit restraints, she is only allowed to display three-dimensional pieces by other artists. She intends to develop a show using statues or pottery that tie in with her own work to create a certain mood.

The Ledbetter Gallery will hold an opening reception Saturday, Aug. 25 from 4 to 7 p.m. to mark, what Ledbetter believes, the start of something great. The gallery is located in Bonnymead Court, on Lincoln Street between Ocean and Seventh avenues, Carmel.

"I feel very confident this is going to work," she says. "I have a unique approach to art and am fortunate to put it out in front of the public."

'I never really wanted to paint on demand. When one painting sells, artists tend to do it all the time, I didn't want to fall into that trap.'

– Emy Ledbetter

"CYCLE OF LIFE" is among the canvases by owner/artist Emy Ledbetter that can be viewed at the newly opened Ledbetter Gallery in Carmel-by-the-Sea. "I paint to entice a person to look again and again," the artist says.

LONGTIME CARMEL artist Emy Ledbetter has decided to go into business for herself. She has opened the Ledbetter Gallery in Bonnymead Court, Carmel, and will celebrate with a reception from 4 to 7 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 25. (Pauline Lynch photograph).

Cultural regranting guidelines set

THE MONTEREY COUNTY Cultural Council's Regranting Program guidelines and application forms are now available. New applicants can receive guidelines by sending a self-addressed, business-size or larger envelope to: Regranting Program, MCCC, P.O. Box 246, Salinas, CA 93902. Applications have been mailed to last year's applicants. Deadline for application receipt is Sept. 21.

This is the sixth cycle of the Regranting Program, which distributes monies set aside for culture by the Monterey County Board of Supervisors.

All non-profit, tax-exempt organizations located in Monterey County and providing literary, visual, media or performing arts programming are eligible after one year of operation. Programming must be directed to Monterey County audiences, and priority will be given to organizations that provide programs for underserved residents – the geographically isolated, minorities, senior citizens, youth and the incarcerated. Multi-cultural content of programs is encouraged.

Two types of grants are available, project grants and institution grants. Project grants are designed to fund specific projects by organizations that have been in operation for at least a year. This type of grant is generally requested by young organizations not eligible for an institution grant. Organizations must have been in operation for three full years before applying for an institution grant, which will fund general operating expenses.

In some cases, arts groups who do not possess non-profit standing may apply through a sponsoring non-profit organization.

Application cannot be made in both the project and institution categories by the same organization in the same year.

The Cultural Council will hold workshops to assist applicants with preparation of the grants. The staff will also be available by telephone or by appointment in the office to answer questions.

For further information, call the Cultural Council, 424-3043.

Surfin' Safari launched in CV

GRAB YOUR board and go on a surfin' safari on Sunday, Aug. 26 at the "Barefoot Surfin' Safari Food Faire" sponsored by the Carmel Valley Community Youth Center.

The fun starts at 2 p.m. at the Community Center, located at 25 Ford Road, near the Village in Carmel Valley. Sixties music will take you back to the days when "catch a wave" and madras shirts were a way of life.

Activities include hula-hoop and limbo contests, a dance troupe, directed by Carmel Ballet Academy's Carol Benton, and a two-hour performance by a live band reminiscent of the Beatles.

Admissions is free. For more information call 659-3983.

Antiques sale benefits Hospice

TWO DOZEN of the West's most respected and distinguished antique dealers will bring their hand-chosen stock to the Hospice Antique Show and Sale, set Friday through Sunday, Aug. 24-26, to benefit the Hospice of the Central Coast.

Booths featuring clocks, silver, rugs, glass, porcelains, fine linens, and art from all cultures and areas of the world will also be on display.

The sale will be held at San Carlos Cathedral Hall, on Church and Figueroa Streets in Monterey. Hours are Friday 11 a.m. to 6 p.m., Saturday and Sunday 11 a.m. to 5 p.m.

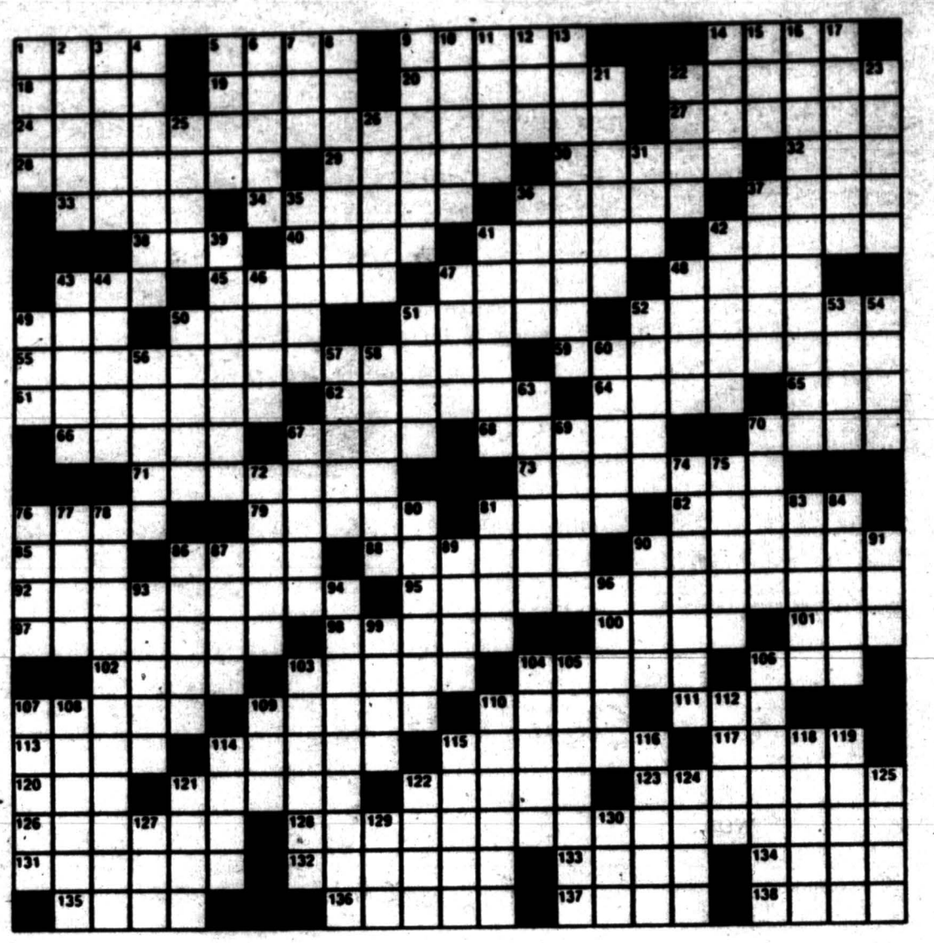

Admission is $3.

A CRINNID is captured by the cameras of Lovell and Libby Langstroth. The Carmel couple documented the beauty of coral reefs in an exhibit opening at the Pacific Grove Museum of Natural History.

AN IMAGE of an anemone is part of "Coral Reefs Beneath the Surface: World of Cooperation and Competition." The collection of color photographs can be viewed through Oct. 14 at the Pacific Grove museum.

Photographs document competitive world of coral reefs

If a picture speaks a thousand words, Lovell and Libby Langstroth have uncovered some of the beauty and mystery of the coral reef without uttering a sound.

In the Langstroth's photography exhibit, "Coral Reefs Beneath The Surface: World of Cooperation and Competition," which will be on display at the Pacific Grove Museum of Natural History Aug. 25 through Oct. 14, the couple seeks to record coral as an artform and to create an awareness of the sophisticated adaptations of coral reef organisms.

The exhibit is based on seven trips devoted to the exploration of Indo-Pacific coral reefs. The Langstroths wanted to go beyond the obvious beauty of the environment, in an attempt to understand how these species survive and flourish in clear oceanic waters with the scarcity of nutrients and a number of predators.

With their images, the Lanstroths try to reveal the means by which organisms prey upon each other for essential nutrients, while at the same time, defend themselves from their own predators. A cycle of cooperation and competition, the Langstroths believe, is the dominant theme in this underwater world.

The couple moved to Carmel in 1980, after retiring from their professions of physical anthropology and medicine, respectively. They pursued studies in marine biology at Hopkins Marine Station and Moss Landing Marine Laboratory.

Their interest in marine life led them on more than 500 dives, all over the globe, from the Monterey Peninsula to Indonesia.

Their work has been published in Natural History and Pacific Discovery and many of their images are on display at the Monterey Bay Aquarium, where they work as volunteers.

This is the Langstroth's third show at Pacific Grove's Museum of Natural History. Their most recent exhibit, in 1988, was of organisms living on a blade of kelp.

Del Monte Dog Show set Saturday

Approximately 2,000 dogs representing more than 100 American Kennel Club recognized breeds, ranging from the Afghan Hound to the Yorkshire Terrier, will meet on the grounds of Carmel Middle School on Saturday, Aug. 25. They will be examined by judges from all over the United States at the Del Monte Kennel Club's annual summer All-Breed Dog Show and Obedience Trial.

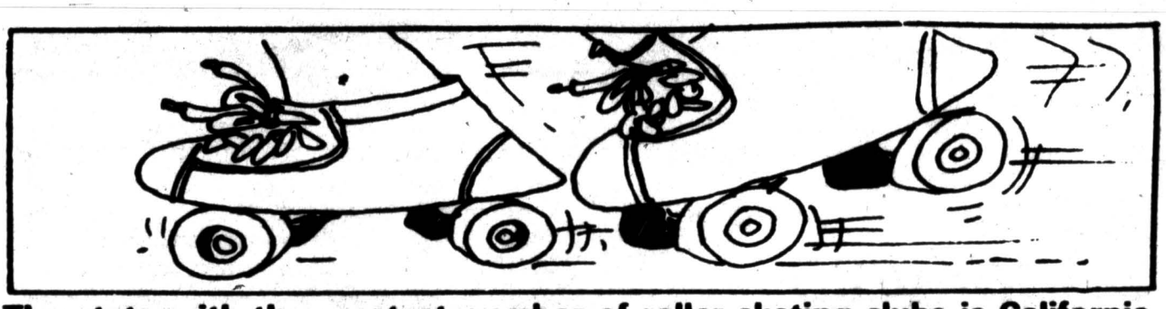

Golden Retriever fans, as well as fans of the Afghan and Doberman Pinscher breeds will be able to see larger than usual numbers of these dogs since their independent breed specialty shows are being held in conjunction with the Del Monte Kennel Club Show. Also, the national breed clubs will support the entries of Australian Terriers and Newfoundlands at the Del Monte Show.

Competition in both conformation and obedience begins at 8 a.m. and will continue throughout the day until group judging begins at approximately 3 p.m., followed by the selection of Best in Show around 5 p.m.

Admission to the show grounds on Carmel Valley Road, one mile east of Highway 1, is free, although there is a $3 charge per car for parking at the school. Proceeds benefit the Carmel Middle School Development Fund.

The Carmel Mission Kiwanis Club will provide food and beverage refreshments at the show.

Sunday, Aug. 26, Santa Clara Valley Kennel Club will have their dog show and obedience trial on the same grounds.

The state with the greatest number of roller skating clubs is California, with over 100.

ON STAGE

Sunday in the Park with George

George Seurat's painting, "A Sunday Afternoon on the Island of La Grande Jatte," serves as the backdrop for this musical that explores the creative process and an artist's commitment to his art above all else. The Monterey Peninsula College Theatre Company brings to life the Stephen Sondheim musical, in the Main Stage Theatre on campus.

Sunday in the Park with George opens at 8 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 23. It continues at 8 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays and 2 p.m. Sundays through Sept. 9.

Carl Palme is featured as the painter George, and Laura Akard portrays his mistress, Dot. Tom McKenzie is the director. Barney Hulse is the musical director.

Reservations for Sunday in the Park with George are available through Center Stage Ticketing, 649-5561; or the MPC box office, 646-4213. Tickets are $12 general admission; $9 for students, military and senior citizens, and $6 for children age 12 and younger.

The King and I

The Carmel-based Frohman Academy for Musical Theater Education will celebrate the conclusion of its seventh annual summer musical theater camp by presenting Rodgers and Hammersteins' The King and I.

John Pasqualetti directs the production, which will feature musical direction by John Bowers and sets designed by Carey Crockett.

Curtain is at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday and 2 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 24-26, in the Sister Carlotta Performing Arts Center at Santa Catalina School, Mark Thomas Drive, Monterey.

Tickets are $10 for adults and $5 for children under 12. For tickets and information, call 625-9900.

'A Tale of Two Cities'

JOYCE LOWER (right) tackles the role of Madame DeFarge, and Sydney Brown is Lucie Manette in Marc Fitzgibbons' new American adaptation of the Charles Dickens' classic, A Tale of Two Cities. The production is directed by Taft Miller and Jon Selover and plays in repertory through Sept. 2.

'Kiss Me, Kate!'

MICHELLE BREAUGH is Lilli and Paul Myrvold portrays Fred in the Western Stage production of Kiss Me, Kate!. The Cole Porter musical is based on Shakespeare's Taming of the Shrew.

Kiss Me, Kate

Such Cole Porter compositions as "Too Darn Hot," "Always True to You Darling in My Fashion" and "So in Love" spark this musical that first played in 1948.

The Western Stage production of Kiss Me, Kate plays at 8 p.m. Thursday through Saturday and 7 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 23-26, in the Main Stage Theater at Hartnell College, Salinas.

Single tickets are $12.50 to $14.50, and season tickets are also available. For reservations, call 375-2111 or 649-5561.

Hartnell College is at 156 Homestead Ave. (off West Alisal Street), Salinas.

One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest

Mark Shilstone-Laurent directs this tribute to individualism for the GroveMont Theater Arts Center. Dale Wasserman adapted One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest from the novel by Ken Kesey. It is set in a mental institution, where McMurphy, a free spirit, is pitted against a rigid authority figure, Nurse Ratched. A cast of fellow inmates rounds out this play that is both amusing and serious.

Curtain is at 8 p.m. Thursdays through Saturdays and 7 p.m. Sundays until Sept. 1.

Admission on Fridays and Saturdays is $9.50 general, $8 for students, senior citizens and the military. Admission is $1 cheaper Thursdays and Sundays.

For reservations, call 649-5561. The GroveMont Theater is at 320 Hoffman (at Lighthouse) in New Monterey. For additional information, call 649-6852.

A Tale of Two Cities

Charles Dickens' novel, immersed in the horrors of the French Revolution, has been adapted for the stage by Marc Fitzgibbons. The Western Stage presents A Tale of Two Cities in its Studio Theater.

A Tale of Two Cities is staged at 8 p.m. Saturday and Monday and at both 2 p.m. and 7 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 25-27.

Single tickets are $8.50 to $10.50. For reservations, call 375-2111 or 649-5561.

Hartnell College is at 156 Homestead Ave. (off West Alisal Street), Salinas.

Fiddler on the Roof

Photographic Center announces workshop schedule for autumn '90

THE PHOTOGRAPHIC Center of Monterey Peninsula announces its workshop schedule for all phtotographers interested in further cultivating both their technical skills and their aesthetic approach to photography. The Photographic Center was co-founded by Roger Fremier and Gail Pierce in 1983, created out of a desire to preserve and enrich the photographic tradition on the Monterey Peninsula through workshop education and by gallery exhibits.

A diverse selection of workshops is offered year-round, taught by instructors whose own work is widely exhibited and who bring a wealth of experience and enthusiasm to their teaching. Most of the workshops are in black-and-white photography and are intensive, full weekend or five-day sessions, during which time particiants can immerse themselves in the photographic process.

New offerings this year include: "Fall in the Gold Country," Oct. 26-28, by Evelyn Zarchy Miller, and "Photographic Preservation," Nov. 10, by Loren C. Pigniolo and Chase Weaver.

Workshops which have been offered in previous years and which The Photographic Center presents again include: "Figure in the Landscape," July 13-15 and Oct. 12-14, by Edna Bullock; "Toning, Tinting & Staining," July 21-22, by Richard Lohmann; "Platinum-Palladium," July 27-31, by Dick Arentz; "Sensitometry: Beyond the Zone System," Aug. 1-5, by Phil Davis and Bob Routh; "Printing Formulas of the Masters," Aug. 24-26, by Richard Garrod and Roger Fremier; "Advanced Printing," Oct. 5-7, with Roger Fremier, Henry Gilpin, Robert Osborn and others; "Fall at Mono Lake," Oct. 11-14, by Jeff Nixon; "Death Valley," Oct. 19-21 with Henry Gilpin; "A Day with Cole Weston," Oct. 27, by Cole Weston; "Portfolio Showing," Nov. 3; "Exhibiting Photographs," Nov. 4, by Joe and Jean Daniels; "Fog, Sun and Sea," Nov. 9-11, with Richard Garrod and Brad Cole, and "Black & White Techniques," Nov. 17, with Richard Garrod and Brad Cole.

Those interested in receiving more detailed information or signing up for workshops can write The Photographic Center, P.O. Box 1100, Carmel, CA 93921 or call 625-5181.

Pacific Grove Art Center comes to life with shows

MORE THAN 22 artists will be represented in the new exhibit at the Pacific Grove Art Center opening Friday, Aug. 24 and continuing through Sept. 28. A reception for the artists will take place Friday, Aug. 24 from 7 to 9 p.m. at the art center.

Long-time friends Tony Marsh, ceramic artist and instructor in ceramics at Long Beach College, and Kim Weston, Monterey Peninsula photographer, will present their work in the David Henry Gill Gallery. In an integration of two and three dimensional work, Marsh will exhibit hand built vessels with subtle surfaces and objects within their openings. Weston will show large-scale black and white portraits – people who have passed through or are a part of his life.

In the Elmarie Dyke Gallery, Santa Cruz artist Chris Tedesco will present landscapes rendered in pastel. Tedesco states that the immediacy and intensity of pastels enhances the ability to capture moods. The addition of multiple squares as a part of the format creates the illusion of a scene viewed through a window and adds geometric dimension to the contours of the land.

In the Photography Gallery, Will Wallace and Joe Mariscal present a show entitled, "Giant Steps," a homage to jazz. Wallace's color photographs and Mariscal's ceramic work pay tribute to the spirit of jazz. The artists share a true appreciation of the men and women who have touched their souls through music.

The tenants of the 19 studios at the art center emerge to exhibit their work in the Hall Gallery. A variety of media and personal expression will be presented by artists Anita Benson, Marie Brumond, Martha Casanave, Alice Elcano, Mary Fletcher, Dante Rondo, Carl Bowman, Sherard Russell, Julie Smith, David Whitlock, Connie Pearlstein, Chris Hulse, Jay Hannah, Carole Minou, and Gael Baldock.

The Pacific Grove Art Center is located at 568 Lighthouse Ave. in Pacific Grove. Admission is free.

JULIE SMITH, a Pacific Grove artist and member of the Carmel Art Association, works primarily from the life model or from her own collection of kimonos, masks, and other objects. Her work is usually done in soft pastel on rag paper.

SIX ARTISTS are participating in the art center's Tenants' Show. Anita Benson produced this acrylic, "Shadow of a Woman."

She has been a part-time instructor in art at Monterey Peninsula College for the past eight years.

Flower poster charts natives

A WILDFLOWER poster has been produced by the California Department of Parks and Recreation and the Pacific Grove-Asilomar Operating Corporation. Its theme is the preservation of California's natural heritage, and it depicts "The Wildflowers of the Asilomar Dunes."

sl100Barnas Pomeroy, a 35-year resident of Carmel Valley, was commissioned to illustrate the poster. She depicted the 36 species of wildflowers native to the Asilomar area. Pacific Grove graphic artist Lori Hughes arranged the plant portraits on the poster, which also includes the scientific and common names of these plants.

Due to the vast number of people crossing the once white Asilomar dunes in years past, as well as the intrusion of the non-native iceplants (Mesembryanthemum), the dunes' character has drastically changed. But now, the colorful native wildflowers that belong there, are being grown from seed in Asilomar's greenhouse.

Mary Barnas Pomeroy has illustrated "Flora of the Marshes of California" by Herbert L. Mason, "Native Trees of the San Francisco Bay Region" by Woodbridge Metcalf, both of U.C. Berkeley, and other botanical works.

She has published the "Birthday Flowers" calendar and is working on a picture book of flowering coastal vegetation of our area. These paintings are watercolors with ink outlining, her favorite technique for botanical subjects.

Pomeroy's work can be viewed located locally at Beeches Gallery, Carmel; and Maison Val Du Soleil in Carmel Valley.

ON STAGE

The cast includes Michael Robbins as Tevye, Leslie Williams as Golde and Carey Crockett as Lazar Wolfe.

The Outdoor Forest Theater is at Mountain View at Santa Rita in Carmel-by-the-Sea.

Tickets are $12.50 general, $10 for children, military and senior citizens.

Be sure to dress warmly.

For additional information or reservations, call 626-1681 or 649-5561.

The Rimers of Eldritch

A derelict has been murdered, the questions are dark and tangled. Who is he? Who murdered him? Why was he murdered? To solve the mystery, playwright Lanford Wilson looks at the outside and inside of the tiny midwestern town that is the setting for The Rimers Eldritch.

The Western Stage presents The Rimers of Eldritch in its Studio Theater. Curtain is at 8 p.m. Thursday and Friday, Aug. 23-24.

The play contains adult themes. Tickets are $8.50 Sundays through Thursdays and $10 on Fridays and Saturdays. For reservations, call 375-2111 or 649-5561.

Hartnell College is at 156 Homestead Ave. (off West Alisal Street), Salinas.

Cabaret

A nightclub in decadent 1930s Berlin provides the setting for Cabaret. The musical, written by Joe Masteroff and Fred Ebb, continues at The Wharf Theater.

Gina Welch-Hagen directs Cabaret. The cast includes Denise Terrazas as Sally Bowles, Doug Phillips as Cliff and Mel Ushakoff as the Emcee.

Curtain is at 8:30 p.m. Thursdays through Saturdays and at 8 p.m. Sundays until Sept. 2. Tickets are $10 general, $5 for children. The Wharf Theater is located at the end of Old Fisherman's Wharf in Monterey. For information or reservations, call 649-2333 or 649-5561.

The Drunkard

The wages of drink are outlined in The Drunkard, when a totally respectable Edward Middleton becomes downtrodden after being tempted with drink. Of course, as in all good melodramas, all ends well with Edward back in the loving arms of his family. The title role will be played by Richard Barrett, noted Monterey Peninsula theater personage.

California's First Theatre is the setting for The Drunkard. The theater, the oldest in the state, is located at the corner of Scott and Pacific streets in historic downtown Monterey.

Artistic expression

SUNDAY IN the Park with George*, the current production at Monterey Peninsula College, features Carl Palme (left), John Newkirk and Laura Akard. The musical plays through Sept. 9 with 8 p.m. performances on Fridays and Saturdays and 2 p.m. performances on Sundays. For reservations, call 646-4213 or 649-5561.

JAZZ TIDES

By John Detro

Giant steps

JAZZ PHOTOGRAPHY today stakes a serious claim on our attention. As noted last time, Herman Leonard's show of vintage shots (nailed in '40s and '50s along the fabled 52nd Street) has opened at Robert Koch Gallery. Address: 210 Post, San Francisco. "(These) photographs are distinguished by an abiding reverence for his subjects," writes the jazz poet and essayist Al Young. The exact same thing could be said about local lensman Will Wallace's collection.

The two-man exhibit called Giant Steps opens tomorrow evening (8/24) with a 7-9 reception at Pacific Grove Art Center – Will Wallace photos and jazz figures by Stockton ceramic sculptor Joe Mariscal. Their efforts may be viewed through late next month (9/28).

It has been my pleasure to team with Will quite a bit, covering events both for this column and the national JazzTimes. He demonstrates rare personal qualities (calm awareness, determination, courtesy toward artists) that inevitably show up in final prints. Usually difficult subjects kick back and cooperate with Will Wallace – simply because his compassion and respect for the art form never can be mistaken for mere ambition.

Will took the last performance picture of drummer Dannie Richmond, who suffered a fatal heart attack just a few days after playing Kuumbwa Jazz Center in Santa Cruz. The time I'd cite here and now, however: when we met backstage with Brazilian singer Joyce at Kimball's/San Francisco. She was weary from travel and had a sore throat. Will was so gently efficient that Joyce felt safe – soon she was smiling and strumming her guitar. This image appears in JazzTimes for the present month.

And when I get tired and grumpy on some late set, Will's there with the reminder that it's an honor to meet with jazz heavyweights and represent them. The man's goodness propels good work. Do yourself a favor and absorb this show.

Meanwhile, Berkeley-based jazz photographer Lee Tanner says via letter that his publisher (Pomegranate Art Books) soon will issue a second bound batch. Black-and-white images – 40 different jazz people. Watch for the review here.

Also the curator of notable exhibits, Lee reports that a new Jazz Image show will go up next month (9/26) at Kimball's East in Emeryville. Things by Milt Hinton, Veryl Oakland, Giuseppe Pino.

BLUES BUFFS can boogie down at Seaside's Oldemeyer Center on Saturday night (8/25). That's when Monterey Bay Blues Festival stages its latest public party. Nine o'clock start.

Music will be made by Terry Hanck's Soulrockers and an all-star revue – killer guitarist Bobby Murray, Beverly Watson, Freddie Hughs. Dancing, door prizes, food catered by Ferdi's (very good New Orleans fare).

At the door: $14 per. You'll save a couple of bucks by buying advance ducats. Obtainable at Royal Barber Shop, Portofino Cafe, Dorothy's House of Beauty, Grove Auto Parts, Carmel Music Co.

Seaside Community Services announces talent for the seventh annual Monterey Peninsula Jazz/Art Show slated early next month (Saturday evening 9/8) at Oldemeyer Center. Playing the date will be alto saxist John Handy with Class (vocalizing violinists Julie Carter, Tarika Lewis, Sandi Poindexter) plus guest singer Buddy Conner. Also on hand – Monterey Peninsula Youth Jazz Orchestra, high school players brought together by the Monterey Jazz Festival learning system.

Handy's group was a big hit at the last fest. Donations run $12 apiece. Proceeds help deserving art students through scholarships. Tickets available at Oldemeyer Center.

A social hour and art preview will begin at 7:30. Entertainment kicks off an hour later. Info: 899-6270.

THIS COLUMN received a letter from Greg Stegeman, longtime Carmel Valley resident who moved to Las Vegas after being hired by The Four Freshmen as singer and instrumentalist. The single father had admired that unit since boyhood and got his big break on the strength of a self-produced cassette.

"It has been rumored that we'll travel to Sweden with the Woody Herman band," Greg wrote. "We've got a date with the Milwaukee Symphony in August and two weeks in Japan right before Christmas."

Then: "Everyone's telling (leader) Bob Flanigan that the group sounds better than ever – so you can imagine how happy I am. I really love my life now."

KQED-TV pays respects to the great Nat Cole with specials this coming weekend. These rebroadcasts: The Unforgettable Nat King Cole and selections from the 1957 NBC series The Nat King Cole Show.

The first details how the singer and brilliant pianist overcame prejudice. Saturday (8/25) – noon, 5:00 p.m., 8:00 p.m. Sunday (8/26) – 11:20 a.m., 4:00 p.m.

And the series? Exactly 16 "lost" episodes now seen for the first time since their original broadcast 33 years ago. Guests include Ella Fitzgerald, Cab Calloway, Pearl Bailey, Sammy Davis. Saturday – 1:30 p.m., 6:30 p.m. Sunday – 12:50 p.m.

SIGHT BITES: Multiple saxist John Cortes has been expanding his quartet's book. The high-level group will work Monterey Bay Club on Wednesday night (8/29). Others there: Kitty Margolis with the Sy Perkoff Trio (8/23), Ken Arconti's Blow Top Blues Band (8/24-25), Bob Phillips plus Terry Miller (8/26), Don Pendergrass (8/27), Gail Dobson and Rick Vanderveer (8/28).

– Ace Hill Trio will spark joy Sunday (8/26) at Monterey Plaza Hotel. From noon till four on the lower terrace; no cover and no minimum. John Kelly put together this series.

– Kuumbwa brings in guitarists Ralph Towner and John Abercrombie for Monday night (8/27). Center Stage Ticketing.

Friday evening (8/24): the tight band Tambo playing a salsa dance concert. Just $5 per; ducats at door only.

– The gutsy Holehouse Blues Band claims the Thursday night spotlight at Cancun in The Crossroads. Down-in-the-trenches and well worth your attention.

– Monterey Peninsula Jazz Orchestra, of course. Monday nights at Mission Ranch Barn.

– Ace Hill continues at Doubletree Lounge. Thursdays and Fridays (5-7); Saturdays (7-11). Duo with bassist Ian Fugate.

– Highlands Inn offers the Monica Harle Trio. Friday and Saturday evenings.

– Bob Phillips and Terry Miller enliven Captain Hook Lounge of Monterey Beach Hotel. Many guest artists.

– Don't forget those jams fronted by bassist Norm Ross at The Firehouse. Thursday and Saturday nights.

– Papa Jake and pals at Shanty Malone's. Monterey Vocal Jazz Ensemble on Thursday evenings.

– Drummer Louis Hayes leads his power group into Kimball's of San Francisco (8/29-9/1). With Charles Tolliver (trumpet), John Stubblefield (reeds), pianist George Cables, Clint Houston on bass.

Ann Dyer signals that she's no longer the public info person at the Kimball's shops. She'll go to work as publicist for that bright Jazz in the City series.

UP CLOSE – Jazz photographer Will Wallace's show at Pacific Grove Art Center includes this portrait of master vibes player Milt Jackson. See Detro column for details.

– Yoshi's in Oakland imports young organ star Joey De Francesco (8/23-25).

– The traveling JVC Jazz Fest hits Concord Pavilion on Saturday afternoon and evening (8/25). Zawinul Syndicate, Grover Washington Jr., Stanley Jordan, Lee Ritenour, Pancho Sanchez, David Benoit, Joyce Cooling.

– In case you've eyes for a journey, the no-cost Chicago Jazz Fest has a monster lineup this time (8/30-9/2). Includes McCoy Tyner Big Band, Shorty Rogers and his Giants with Bud Shank, Horace Silver, bass trumpetist Cy Touff, 31-member orchestra performing the Mingus Epitaph under Gunther Schuller's baton. Full details: (312) 744-3370.

ART NOTES

By Sam Colburn

Travels of my mind

SOMEWHERE in the travels of my mind I have read that the number of the artists in the United States trebled over a period of 10 years. Gone is a certain elitism of the past.

Being part of this did not imply that the artist was superior socially. Indeed in the old days he or she might be suspected of many immoral practices such as dressing sloppily, having a loose life sexually, slopping up the booze, and needing hair care. That is all gone now as it is apparent that anybody in any class may be guilty of such moral lassitude. Being an artist is, however, still regarded as being different than the butcher, the baker, and the candlestick maker. There is instead a kind of implied superiority over other lower forms of life.

Here on the peninsula we are indeed fortunate in being able to behold not only local creativity, but that from far different terrain. This is available within a range of a few miles, and without the congestion of a big city. Because of this closeness and ease of communication, a number of organizations exist that are devoted to art and the artist.

OVER AT the Claypoole Freese Gallery, Barry Masteller continues to present artists who achieve both form and feeling in their work. In this current show it is Edward Pieters who is master of paper sculpture. Using all cotton rags, he makes the paper which through his technique appears like cloth or assumes geometric shapes. This is very sophisticated work.

I have just learned to my dismay that the above show will have been taken off the walls by the time that this review appears in print. I also regret that the exhibits changed at the Pacific Grove Art Center on Aug. 19. Even though Sue Collins will have removed her very graphic installation, I will not forget her figures swathed in painted cloth, or maybe canvas? They were surreal in a fashion reminiscent of Salvador Dali.

SCULPTURE HAS, in recent years, become very popular. It is splendid for the visual enrichment of gardens or other outdoor placement. I suppose that the name of Henry Moore is most frequently mentioned in this regard.

At present the expressive sculpture of Alvin Light is in place in the main gallery at the Monterey Museum of Art. Although he is a Bay Area artist, I had not heard of him. This work combines milled lumber with branches and limbs found on beaches and in the woods. He is long gone from representation or any recognizable organic shapes. It is as if he is creating some individual life forms. His charcoals of nudes are not nearly as far out. There is a very strong mixed media work on the wall facing you as you enter the gallery. The subject matter looks like some discarded automobile part. His show runs through Oct. 7.

"A New Life's Work" is also showing at the Monterey Museum of Art. These are done with oil stick and oil pastel. As I understand it, he was in the beginning a dentist. In any event these drawings in content are gently satirical and humorous. One title is "George and Barbara Bush." He does many faces and figures, and applies few titles. It is as if he has an adult mind and a child's eye. His work will be on view through Oct. 14.

CHRISTOPHER GRIMES has a clean well-lighted gallery on the west side of Dolores north of Seventh Avenue. Currently he presents the sculpture of Ken Matsumoto. There is an explosion of mixed media today. This gentleman has managed, somehow, to combine steel, glass, onyx, and cement. The work is geometric, and many of the pieces mounted with style. The latter is especially true for numbers 2, 3, and 6. He has achieved a raised pattern on the onyx in No. 2. Several of these pieces are exactly the same shape with differences in the material and the patterns created. Numbers 8, 9, and 10 are wall pieces of steel, glass, and onyx. There is an illusion of distance and endless space. The sort of feeling you get on driving through our high desert – one range beyond another.

THE CARMEL ART Association comprises one of the oldest grouping of artists here in the United States. If I remember correctly, the fledgling group took over the small building that had housed Rem Remson, the playwright, who had written "Inchling." At present the paintings of Ferdinand Burgdorff adorn the walls of the main gallery. These are a legacy bequeathed by this artist who was one of the founding members. Those pioneers are part of the reason that Carmel was known as "The Seacoast of Bohemia."

SCULPTOR KEN Matsumoto produced "Number 4," using white concrete and black granite. A collection of his recent works can be viewed at the Christopher Grimes Gallery on Dolores Street between Ocean and Seventh avenues in Carmel-by-the-Sea.

I remember "Ferdie." He had sandy-colored hair. His complexion was light, rather red, and he wore leather puttees. His major media was oil. There is a pristine quality about much of his work. He loved the Southwest. At time he used paint in the manner of Seurat, as one can see in "107, "Navajo Wagon." His imagery is not very interesting.

In the George Beardsley Gallery of the association is an all member show. I liked "The Rock" by Phillip Thorngate. It shows a developing maturity. The transfer pieces by Alex Gonzales are curious. They seem to be painting over photography. Both are entitled "Table Settings".

HELEN DOOLEY is having a one woman showing of her early paintings at her gallery which is on the Mall between Fifth and Sixth and between San Carlos and Mission. These are all watercolors in which the subject matter is obvious, and are very interesting to look at in relation to her present painting in oil which is either abstract or non objective.

Helen's lead piece is the famous church in Taos, New Mexico. This adobe edifice has been the subject matter for many painters, and photographers. She handles it very simply. The movement in some of the work is horizontal and vertical. This is true in No. 18, "Boats at Moss Landing," in which she uses the white areas very well and in which some of the washes cross from one boat to another. No. 7 "Orchard" has a strong diagonal movement that takes the eye to the top of a hill. No. 6 "Blossoms" is more patterned than most of the pieces, and has a strong circular concept. I like No. 5 "Palm Trees in Mexico." There is light and air in this watercolor and the forms are loose and free. This show indicates a range of ability in handling space.

Sales Professionals

We are looking for experienced business professionals who want to become Fine Art Consultants with Lahaina Galleries Inc. We are a leader in our field with a 14 year history of honorable dealings and a very large base of happy, repeat clients. We represent many internationally recognized artists in seven gallery locations in Hawaii and California.

Qualified candidates will be excellent communicators with proven accomplishments in big ticket sales, clean life-styles, and clear plans to earn over $60,000 in commissions annually.

We are now interviewing to fill Sales Consultant positions in San Francisco, Newport Beach and Maui. Those applicants selected may join our team for training in September and October.

Demonstrate skills in planning, presentation and persistence, and you will earn an interview for the most rewarding career experience of your life: placing magnificent works of life-affirming art in the collections of wonderful people.

Please contact John Schweiner or Patti Jerhoff at the address below, or at 808-667-7095. An interview in California is possible if you respond immediately.

RESOLUTION 90-4

A RESOLUTION OF THE CARMEL VALLEY FIRE PROTECTION DISTRICT STATING THEIR INTENT TO ADOPT AN ORDINANCE TO DETERMINE AND PROPOSE FOR ADOPTION, BY VOTER APPROVAL, A SPECIAL TAX FOR PARAMEDIC AMBULANCE SERVICES

Be it resolved that it is the intent of the Board of Directors of the Carmel Valley Fire Protection District to adopt an ordinance of the District, in accordance with Section 53978 of Article 16 of Chapter 4 of Part 1 of Title 5 of Government Code of the State of California, to determine and propose for adoption, by voter approval, a special tax for paramedic ambulance services within the District.

Further resolved that the said ordinance shall provide for the calling of a special election within the District for the purpose of submitting to the qualified electors within the District the following proposition:

Shall the Carmel Valley Fire Protection District establish and impose a special tax, not to exceed $3.75 per unit of benefit per year, on all real property (except that of federal, state, or local government agency) within the boundaries of said District, for paramedic ambulance services within said boundaries or without said boundaries in accordance with established mutual aid agreements, the collection of which charges shall not decrease the appropriations limit of said District for a period of four years from the effective date hereof, and which charges shall be established by the Board of Directors of said District from time to time according to the attached schedule of units of benefit, provided however that the Board of Directors shall levy such special tax only when all other available sources of revenue are insufficient to meet the budgeted expenditures of said District.

A public hearing before the Board of Directors of this District shall be held at 5:00 p.m. on Wednesday, the 12th day of September, 1990, at Carmel Valley Fire Station, for the purpose of considering the adoption of said ordinance.

The Secretary of the District is ordered and directed to cause notice of said hearing by publishing a notice in the Carmel Valley Outlook, a newspaper of general circulation within the District. Said notice shall be published once prior to the date of said hearing in accordance with Section 6061 of the Government Code of the State of California.

Bring own water to Molera Park

Drinking or potable water is no longer available in the Andrew Molera State Park, located on the Big Sur Coast.

In the past, potable water was provided by "water buffalos." The old military metal water tanks on wheels no longer meet state health standards for drinking water and have been removed from the park.

Campers and day users should plan on bringing their own drinking water. Drinking water is available at Pfeiffer Big Sur State Park and Julia Pfeiffer Burns State Park.

For further information, contact the Big Sur District Office at 667-2315.

Park for free in Monterey

The City of Monterey has removed the one-hour parking meters from the first floor of the West Custom House Garage located at Tyler and Del Monte streets downtown. The first floor has been converted to a free one-hour maximum time limit, with the exception of two 24-minute and one handicapped space.
